Trouble at Horse Cave!

Some years ago I slept several nights on the parlor floor of the hotel at Horse Cave, Ky. For this reason I find myself sympathetically perturbed by the news that 45,000 gallons of a deadly chemical are threatening to send the citizens fleeing into the countryside.

The chemical, stored in the six tanks along a rail siding, is arsenic trichloride. It has corroded the tanks and there are leaks. Already the vegetation is dying. If heavy rains come and the tanks break the chemical will be converted into hydrochloric acid, fumes which can be deadly, and into arsenic trioxide, a toxic powder.

And while Kentuckians traditionally have a low regard for water unless it be mixed with bourbon whisky, there nonetheless are those who drink water straight. Horse Cave residents consume great quantities of water, but presently they are drinking very little, fearing the chemical may any day reach their underground streams which provide the town with water.

The 45,000 gallons of chemical were purchased at a government surplus sale by a firm which thought it was getting something else. This fine eye for business perhaps explains why the company has since gone bankrupt.

There is no way to remove the chemical mixture. It can't be let out onto the ground. No one wants it. And so, Horse Cave goes thirsty.

'Old Floyd'

I was a bug-eyed young reporter when I slept on the parlor floor of the hotels in Cave City and Horse Cave, and very thankful to find room there, too. This was in January and February of 1925. A hill character named Floyd Collins died in one of the many caves which abound in that region of Kentucky and had been trapped, deep under the earth, by a falling rock.

Had he been killed no more than a handful of persons would have mourned because "Old Floyd," who was not really old, was just a character who worked "with caves." He was seeking a new entrance to Mammoth Cave when caught.

But, Floyd was not killed. (It was his fate to die slowly.) And when after an interval of 24 hours a search party, knowing about where he had been cave hunting, found the small entrance into which he had crawled, feet first, as experienced underground explorers go in narrow quarters, excitement began to mount. Slender persons went in and talked with Floyd. He was in such a narrow space he couldn't bend his body to remove the rock. Pretty soon there were swarms of reporters and newsreel men there. Then the National Guard came in because people began to charge it was a scandal the way things were being handled.

Weather

It would freeze by night and thaw an inch or so by day. During the long period when it was thought Floyd might be rescued, we slept on straw placed in tents at the site. But, when we could we would go down to Sand Cave or Horse Cave for a bath and a sleep. What we would now call "the brass" in politics and National Guard had all the rooms in the small town, and a space on the carpet on the hotel parlor floor was much better than the straw and the cold.

At the site telephones were on trees and in two or three houses—some a half mile or more away. It was all party line and sometimes as many as two or three reporters would be on the phone snarling and cursing one another as they tried to shout news to distant city desks.

A girl reporter from a Chicago paper had been making us all look bad writing about Floyd's "wild-rabbit of a mountain girl, pretty as a rhododendron blossom." We could not find her. One day I was in a log cabin warming by a fire and got to talking with a girl with two gold teeth and a dip of snuff in her lip. Turned out she was Floyd's girl. And Floyd died down there in the cold dark.

It's been a long time. And I'm sorry about the trouble at Horse Cave.

Solons Urge Tighter Tab On Wardens

Denounce Laxity At County Camps

By ALBERT RILEY

Tighter state control over the wardens of county public works camps was advocated yesterday as a legislative committee opened an investigation into a wave of escapes and crimes committed by Georgia prisoners.

As Rep. Edwin S. Kemp of Clayton and Rep. Floyd Tulin of Bartow sharply criticized county wardens for their laxity in handling prisoners, Kemp said it might be a good idea for the state to pay a part of the wardens' salaries and make the wardens responsible to the state.

MOVE TO COBB

Tulin also suggested that the wardens should be bonded so as to make them liable for damages caused by the unlawful acts of escaped or trusty prisoners.

After a morning conference with State Department of Corrections officials, Kemp, Tulin and Rep. John Drinkard of Lincoln went to Cobb County to continue their investigation. It was in Cobb County that a trusty prisoner was accused of criminally assaulting a housewife Tuesday.

Meanwhile, the legislative group asked R. E. Warren, state director of corrections, to have the Cobb County warden appear today before a joint meeting of the House and Senate penitentiary committees.

DOLLAR ABOVE PUBLIC

The lawmakers charged there have been too many violations of Board of Corrections regulations at county camps and blamed much of the infractions on political interference with the wardens by county commissioners.

"The wardens are listening to their county commissioners instead of to the Board of Corrections," Tulin said, "and the commissioners are putting the dollar ahead of protecting the public."

"You'd be surprised at the number of camps we walk into and find no one in charge," Tulin added as he told of finding instances where "dog boys" were allowed to have guns and other prisoners allowed to wear civilian clothes to receive visitors.

Warren, J. B. Hatchett, assistant director of corrections, and Robert Carter, chief clerk of the department, told the lawmakers

Truman Listed Near Top of Roll For Nobel Prize

OSLO, Norway, Oct. 21 (UP)—Former President Truman was reported today to be a leading candidate for this year's Nobel Peace Prize.

Gunnar Jahn, chairman of the Norwegian Nobel Committee, confirmed that Truman is on the list of nominees and well-informed sources said he is one of the top candidates.

The prize winner is expected to be named toward the end of this month. Jahn said. The prize includes a cash award of more than $50,000.

Jahn said Truman was proposed for this year's prize by Turkish President Celal Bayar and Field Marshal Alexander Papagos of Greece.

AGED WOMAN CARRIED FROM FIRE—PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 21—Swathed in a blanket, a resident of the Presbyterian Home for Widows and Single Ladies smiles cheerily as two rescuers carry her in a chair away from fire that damaged the home. All of the more than 200 occupants of the home escaped.

Sikes' Challenge Won't Halt Quiz---Talmadge

By JACK NELSON

Gov. Talmadge last night said Liberty County Sheriff Paul Sikes' ouster hearing will be held on Oct. 28 without regard to the sheriff's move yesterday to have declared unconstitutional the law on which the hearing is based.

In a declaratory judgment petition, Sikes attacked the constitutionality of the law and accused two Liberty County grand jurors and a Hinesville attorney of conspiring to have the grand jury return a presentment against him.

The law, passed in 1937, makes mandatory an ouster hearing before the governor when a grand jury charges a sheriff with knowingly failing to enforce state liquor laws. A Liberty County grand jury returned charges of this nature against Sikes last month.

"I will recognize the law as being valid until the courts hold otherwise," Gov. Talmadge said. "I will proceed with the hearing on Oct. 28 unless a board of physicians I appoint examines Sheriff Sikes and finds him to be physically unable to appear."

Atlantic Circuit Judge Mel Price set Nov. 28 for a hearing on Sikes' unconstitutionality plea after W. C. Hodges of Hinesville, one of the sheriff's attorneys, filed the petition.

Named as defendants in the petition are members of the grand jury, Atty. Gen. Cook and John Underwood, Hinesville attorney who served as counsel to the jury.

Sikes contends in the petition that Underwood, grand jury foreman Fred Minglehoff Jr. and a grand juror, Roy Keel, "conspired and confederated together" to bring about the jury's presentment against the sheriff.

The petition maintains that the alleged conspiracy occurred prior to the grand jury's presentment and "during the course of the alleged investigation" of the "actings and doings" of Sikes.

GI Who Turned Back on Reds Tells Of 'Dear John' Letter in PW Camp

By FRANK JORDAN

SEOUL, Thursday, Oct. 22 (UP)—A Virginia mountaineer who showed Red-minded GIs the way back to freedom insisted today that "communism is not my belief" and hinted that a jilting sparked his earlier rejection of repatriation.

Pfc. Edward Dickenson of Big Stone Gap, Va., refused to say why he stayed with the Reds when his fellow war prisoners were freed last summer.

"I had my reasons," he said darkly at a press conference soon after he returned to the American fold, the first of 23 U.S. soldiers to renounce the communism they had chosen.

But he admitted he had a girl back in Virginia from whom he received a "Dear John" letter—notification that the romance had wilted—and bristled when asked whether that had anything to do with his decision to stay with the Reds.

"I want to come back with my own people," he said. "I don't want to live with the Communists."

'Rabble-Rousers' Are Trying To Panic Farmers--Benson; Secretary To Stay, Ike Rules

President Won't Mix In Elections

By ANTHONY LEVIERO

New York Times News Service Special to The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21—President Eisenhower stoutly defended Secretary of Agriculture Benson today against demands for his removal. He said he leaned to the view that the farmers were taking their economic distress in better stride than the politicians.

The predominant theme of the President's news conference was the political squeeze that was beginning to grip the administration as a result of the cost-price squeeze that had fastened on cattlemen and farmers.

NOT AN ANALYST

Eisenhower disclaimed any qualification as a political analyst and declined to interpret the recent election of a Democrat to the House of Representatives from a traditionally Republican district of Wisconsin. That Democratic victory has been viewed by many observers as a sample of the farmers' discontent, and a portent of what might happen to the Republican Party next year.

The President declared, however, that he would not participate in the critical campaign for control of Congress next year, reiterating his view that a president should not intrude himself into local political contests. Later inquiry indicated, however, that this did not mean Eisenhower would refrain from touring the country and pleading for support of his program.

PERSISTENT QUIZ

In his 26-minute meeting with the press the President was questioned persistently about the intensifying farm issue and its probable political ramifications. The result was that other issues were touched only lightly. Some of them were:

The President thought a proposal for the sale of the Tennessee Valley Authority to private industry was rather drastic, and he expressed doubt it could be done without wrecking the system.

He expressed his gratification with the change of mind of a U. S. soldier who was a prisoner in Korea who decided not to stay with the Communists. He suggested it was a wonder more Americans had not succumbed, comparing the intensive indoctrination Communists got and the

'Governor Benson' Is a Fumble by Ike

Benson has never been a governor. The capital of Missouri is Jefferson City.

THE COURT ACKNOWLEDGED SHE HAD APPEAL
Belladonna Does Things To Supreme Court Decorum

Her Knit Dress Cracks Supreme Court Rules

By PAUL M. YOST

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (UP)—A stunning blonde in a tight-fitting knit dress today shattered an old Supreme Court tradition.

Tall, blue-eyed Miss Belladonna Villines, a former Chicago lawyer, stood smiling before the nine black-robed high court justices to:

1. Be admitted to practice before the court.
2. Smash the ancient, unwritten rule that no female even remotely resembling a "sweater girl" must ever divert the attention of the judges from their thoughts of law.

Miss Villines—that's her professional name—threw her shoulders back to look up at the judges on their high bench in the brief ceremony.

Her knit fawn-colored dress was set off with a lacy, knitted collar that sparkled with pale gold beads. The V-neck front was cut down about six inches. Her blonde curly hair, parted in the center in front, swirled back over her head and long tresses fell to the back of her collar.

Justice Douglas took one look, then jerked off his glasses for another long look. Justice Frankfurter, 70, kept his eyes on law books before him, until Justice Jackson nudged him. Then both looked and smiled. The other judges took the historic event without blinking.

It was only a couple of years back that a girl reporter was told she could not sit at reporters' tables before the bench if she wore a coat-type sweater.

Outside the courtroom Miss Villines was told by a reporter she had cracked Supreme Court style rules. She threw up her hands in surprise and her cheeks turned red.

"Oh, I truly didn't know," she said. "Why, I thought this outfit was all right for this occasion and I bought a nice little hat to go with it but the court officials said I would not be permitted to wear a hat in court."

"When I practiced before the Chicago courts we wore ordinary clothes like this and always wore a hat. Now, I am truly embarrassed."

Miss Villines, 34, is the wife of Donald Coenen, editor of a magazine published here by the National Association of Home Builders. They have a 10-year old daughter.

The mob denounced "colonialism" in a march on the American Point Four offices, a source of technical aid for the development of this largely desert country. Finding the office closed, the Arabs ripped down notices posted on the doors.

Arab resentment at United States backing for Israel over the last five years was reflected in the outbursts—apparently sparked by Jordan charges of an Israeli raid Oct. 14 on three border villages in which Jordan authorities reported 66 persons were killed.

Impellitteri loses Place on Ballot

NEW YORK, Oct. 21 (UP)—Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri today was ruled off the ballot for the Nov. 3 mayoral election. He was an independent candidate.

State Supreme Court Justice William H. Munson threw out the mayor's nominating petitions after his lawyers failed to enter a defense to a challenge by the regular Democratic candidate, Robert F. Wagner Jr.

Growers Held Calmer Than Instigators

New York Times News Service Special to The Atlanta Constitution

CHICAGO, Oct. 21—Secretary of Agriculture Benson today charged "rabble rousers and demagogues" with attempting to create panic among the nation's farmers who, in fact, he declared, were "less panicky than some politicians."

Benson, speaking with vigor and forcefulness, told a meeting of Sen. Russell calls upon Eisenhower Administration to offer Congress concrete farm program including 90 per cent of parity supports. Page 19.

1,000 delegates to the 44th annual convention of the National Retail Farm Equipment Assn. that the farmers of this country have no reason to fear the future.

FLOOR UNDER PRICES

He said current farm programs put a floor under farm prices and that future programs, with emphasis on marketing, will prove even more effective.

He added, however, that it is not and never will be the plan of the Eisenhower administration "that on some given day we would bring forth a brand new farm program, stretching clear across the board and complete to the last detail."

"We believe that big improvements can be made in the present program. We now have 20 to 30 years of bi-partisan experience in farm programs to look back upon and evaluate and analyze."

JOB AHEAD

"Our job is to sift out the good and keep it, take that which is fairly adequate and strengthen it and, perhaps, find entirely new answers for those programs which are not effective. This," he added, "is a gradual process. It starts from where we are, using the present programs until we have something better."

He reviewed the last 13 years' demand for farm products, stimulated by wars, by relief feeding programs and by defense spending. In these emergencies, he said, difficulties present in farm programs were "glossed over by these emergencies."

Lt. Shoulders Quizzed On Missing $300,000

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 21 (UP)—Police Lt. Louis Shoulders, who arrested the kidnap-slayer of Bobby Greenlease, was questioned today at a top-level police inquiry into apparent conflict in police accounts of the arrest.

The appearance of the key witness at the hearing room was unexpected. Earlier he had been described by his physician as suffering from a nervous condition and in no shape to testify.

The six-foot, 55-year-old officer appeared composed as he entered the hearing room at police headquarters to undergo questioning by a panel headed by Police Chief Jeremiah O'Connell.

The chief earlier today expressed doubt the missing half of the record $600,000 ransom paid by the multi-millionaire parents of the slain 6-year-old child ever was brought to St. Louis.

Nearly half the ransom money was found in two suitcases in possession of Carl Austin Hall, 34, the confessed killer, when Hall was arrested by Shoulders at an apartment-hotel here Oct. 6.

These were some of the questions the officials conducting the inquiry were said to want answers on:

1. Why did Shoulders leave the district police station in his private car soon after Hall was jailed there, as other police at the district have reported?
2. Why did he fail to mention his absence from the station in his written report on the arrest?
3. Did Shoulders have the money-filled suitcases brought into the police station along with Hall, as he previously reported, or some time later as others have claimed?
4. Why wasn't Shoulders' partner in the arrest, Patrolman Elmer Dolan, informed of the contents of the suitcases until about two hours after Hall was arrested, as Dolan is said to have reported?

Balanced Budget in '55 Forecast by Rep. Taber

By DAYTON MOORE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP)—Chairman John W. Taber of the House appropriations committee predicted today after a White House conference that the federal budget will be balanced in the 12 months starting next July 1.

MEDITATION

He did not say whether his 30-minute talk with President Eisenhower contributed to his optimism. Most high administration officials heretofore have expressed strong doubt the budget can be balanced in fiscal 1955—the government year starts July 1, 1954.

BALANCE NEAR

Taber also said he believes the government will come "very close" to a balanced budget for the current fiscal year, ending next June 30. The latest administration forecast is for a deficit of nearly $4,000,000,000 for the year. The New York Republican did not go into detail about how the budget is to be balanced next year. He did, however, say his forecast takes account of the expiration of excess profits taxes and the scheduled 10 per cent reduction in individual income levies, due to take place Jan. 1.

Taber also said the armed forces must stop spending money on conventional weapons becoming obsolete if the budget is to be balanced—a possible hint that his committee may plan some economies along that line.

He said Congress now is appropriating enough money for interceptor planes, guided missiles and radar screens to provide an effective defense against atomic or hydrogen bomb attack.

GAIN INCOME

Taber predicted that losses from the excess profits tax will be made up by increased government revenues from corporations. Presumably he meant that improved business profits, partly due to lower taxes, would bring the government more income from corporations.

W. Randolph Burgess, deputy to Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey, said today the administration still has "hope" of a balanced budget in fiscal 1955. But he said that would mean closing a $10,000,000,000 gap in expected federal income and outgo—by raising taxes or cutting spending.

There appears to be general agreement among congressional leaders that the corporate tax rate will not be allowed to drop from the present 52 per cent rate to 47 per cent April 1, as now provided by law. There has been talk of a compromise at 50 per cent.

Giant Sphere To Test Atomic Plants in Subs

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Oct. 21 (AP)—Completion of a steel sphere taller than an 18-story building for testing atomic power plants in submarines was announced today by the Atomic Energy Commission.

The towering 3,850-ton mass of steel rises on a site that was once farm land near the Knolls atomic power laboratory in nearby West Milton, N. Y. It was built to prevent escape of radioactive materials in the testing of an atomic reactor under construction by the General Electric Co. at the laboratory.

The sphere was built large enough to simulate actual sea-going conditions. The power plant to be tested will be installed in a submarine hull, which is under construction alongside the sphere. The hull will be skidded into the sphere and submerged in water.

The Chicago Bridge & Iron Co., which built the sphere, said the largest of its kind previously were five fuel storage tanks in Connecticut, each 76½ feet in diameter. The Knolls sphere is 225 feet in diameter and consists of 682 steel plates joined together.

Ten months of work on the sphere were completed when the last openings, at the top and bottom, were closed. A large hole will be cut for skidding in the submarine hull.

The hull is under construction by the General Dynamics Corp. of Groton, Conn.

GE scientists said there was no chance of the submarine power plant causing an atomic bomb type of explosion. The reactor is the first to use neutrons in what scientists call the "intermediate" energy range.

The plant will derive its energy from the fissioning of uranium atoms, which in turn will heat liquid sodium metal. The process will convert water to steam to drive turbines in the propeller shaft.

Earlier in the day Mrs. Wayne's attorneys disclosed that Hilton had been brought into the case officially by subpoena as a witness.

Jerome Rosenthal, Mrs. Wayne's attorney, said he wanted Hilton to explain that the visit in the Wayne home was innocent and that he was in the home only to "rejuvenate" from injuries in an auto accident.

An overflow crowd packed the corridors and courtroom as today's session opened. Mrs. Wayne was scheduled to take the stand before the recess, but arrived five minutes late after receiving a traffic citation on her way to court.

Miss Russell's attorney also appeared for the session and advised lawyers for both Wayne and his wife that the dark-haired actress "strenuously objected" to charges about herself and Wayne.

Waynes Near Accord on Property But Court Will Hear Tryst Stories

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 21 (AP)—Film Star John Wayne and his estranged wife, Mexican Actress Esperanza Baur Wayne, said today they virtually had reached a property settlement but still intend to air the sensational charges on which the divorce case is based.

The announcement was made late in the afternoon following a series of conferences in the chambers of Superior Judge Allen W. Ashburn which led to a continuance of the hearing until next Wednesday.

"We are substantially in agreement on a property settlement and there is not too much split on money," Mrs. Wayne said. "Now it's a case of who wronged whom."

The he-man actor, who filed more than 20 charges against his wife in answer to as many she brought against him, nodded his agreement and said:

"It means that our beef is about over on the money part of the case. Now we have to straighten out the other things."

The "other things" include Mrs. Wayne's accusation that her film star husband spent a night at the home of Actress Gail Russell and Wayne's charge that Hotel Heir Nicky Hilton spent a week at his ranch while he was out of town.

The trial, which opened only two days ago, was in recess all morning because Judge Ashburn's glasses needed fixing. And when it resumed during the afternoon, attorneys went to his chambers and spent more than a half-hour there.

Wayne and the dark-haired actress-wife then were called into the chambers and spent another half-hour conferring with the lawyers.

Wayne insisted that he should get an opportunity to answer allegations made against him involving Miss Russell, that he was bitten by strip teasers in Mexico and that he tried to break into his own home because he became so intoxicated he did not know where he was one night.

No one would say whether the agreement would call for a divorce or separate maintenance. Mrs. Wayne originally sued for separate maintenance and asked $9,000 a month alimony while he cross-filed for divorce.

Miss Bentley Tags Ex-Treasury Men

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP)—Elizabeth Bentley, an admitted Soviet spy ring courier during World War II, testified today she passed Moscow-dictated orders to two former U. S. Treasury officials in a plot to aid Russia in 1943-44.

Miss Bentley named Nathan Gregory Silvermaster and Ludwig Ullman as the two who allegedly helped Russia get U. S. plates to print vast sums of wartime German occupation currency.

Testifying before a Senate investigations subcommittee, Miss Bentley described Silvermaster as the head of a Soviet spy ring operating within the government and said Ullman was a member of the same Red underground unit.

BOTH AT HEARING

Both Silvermaster and Ullman were present at the hearing, but refused to say whether Miss Bentley's accusations were true. Both invoked their constitutional privilege, under the Fifth Amendment, against possible self-incrimination.

Sen. Mundt (R-SD), acting chairman of the subcommittee, told newsmen after the hearing: "It seems to me we have a very clear-cut case that offers no argument or refutation."

Mundt said the refusal of Silvermaster and Ullman to deny Miss Bentley's testimony was proof of his contention that Moscow used spies inside the U. S. government to help get the plates.

SPURRED INFLATION

Mundt said the Soviets printed at least 255 million dollars worth of occupation currency at the expense of U. S. taxpayers. Treasury officials testified yesterday they had no evidence that U. S. taxpayers footed the bill directly, although they said the printing may have added to U. S. foreign aid costs by spurring German inflation.

Previous testimony had brought out that Henry Morgenthau Jr., then secretary of the Treasury, issued the order for turning the plates over to the Russians in 1944. Mundt said he has no plans to call Morgenthau.

"The testimony shows the Russians used spies, but they did it without the knowledge of Morgenthau and other top people that they were surrounded by disloyal people."

Israeli Aid Cut Hit Here As Arbitrary

By JIM PINSON

A representative of the Israeli government complained yesterday that the United States "acted arbitrarily" in stopping aid to her country "without first looking into the facts" of recent truce violations along the Arab-Israeli border.

Here for a speaking engagement, Miss Ruth Goldschmidt, director of public relations for the consulate general of Israel in New York, said her people have been forced to take retaliatory action against Arab terrorists "for their own protection." Israel, she said, has been involved in fewer truce violations than the Arabs, according to records of the United Nations Armistice Commission.

"I hope the UN's Security Council will get to the root of the trouble and make a serious effort to eliminate the poor relations which now exist between Israel and the Arab states," she said. The Security Council, at the request of the U.S., Britain and France, is scheduled to take up the matter of recent border incidents at a meeting today.

Miss Goldschmidt called last week's raid by a group of Israeli citizens on the Jordan town of Kibya "the action of desperate people who felt they were forced to take the law into their own hands."

Sidewalk Overseers Get Perch

By ALEX JOINER, JR.

The blue membership card in the International Society of Sidewalk Superintendents arrived in the mail yesterday. We felt sure it was an exclusive organization.

Hastening over to the hunting-draped clubhouse at Marietta and Forsyth Streets, however, we discovered the society is about as selective as a class reunion . . . but brimming over with the same camaraderie those functions provoke.

ONCE IN LIFETIME

Edging our way onto the crowded observation platform, we spotted Alex Lindholm, vice-president of the Fulton National Bank, which built it, who filled us in on the background of the society:

"It's once in a lifetime most people get to watch a 25-story building going up. That's a big hole down there where they're excavating. We didn't want people falling in, but we did want 'em to be able to see, and this seemed the best way."

It's much superior to the old-fashioned peephole approach, we can report, and it also should do away with traffic jams that were developing on the building corner.

Some 350 persons had availed themselves of the platform's facilities between 10 a.m. yesterday, when it opened, and 3 p.m., and when we left society or would-be-society members were lined up to get topside. (Actually anyone can join by stopping by . . . and all membership cards are marked "No. 1.")

AWNINGS FOR RAIN

There's a bench for tired kibitzers, and an awning in case of rain.

Several overseers, we noticed, were enjoying strawberry ice cream cones while watching. D. R. Chapman, 1168 McLynn Ave., N.E., was one of them and said it was such a pleasure to be able to compare notes with others who have watched the project from the outset.

The sidewalk superintendents were given folders containing the facts and figures on what, when it is finished, will be Atlanta's largest and tallest office building. Here are the highlights:

Ten thousand truckloads of dirt will be removed to provide three basement levels. Steel pilings have already been driven down 45 feet by a 6,000-pound steam compression hammer. The foundation will consist of 1,450 combination steel and concrete pilings, and more than 20,000 cubic yards of concrete and more than 2,000,000 bricks will be used.

Petroleum Firm Files Suit Here Over a Patent

Billup's Petroleum Co. has filed suit here against a competitor, charging the competitor has copied a gas station design patented by Billup's.

The suit asked $25,000 damages and an injunction against Whitaker Oil Co. to halt alleged patent infringements in the design of a filling station at 1000 Bankhead Ave., N.W.

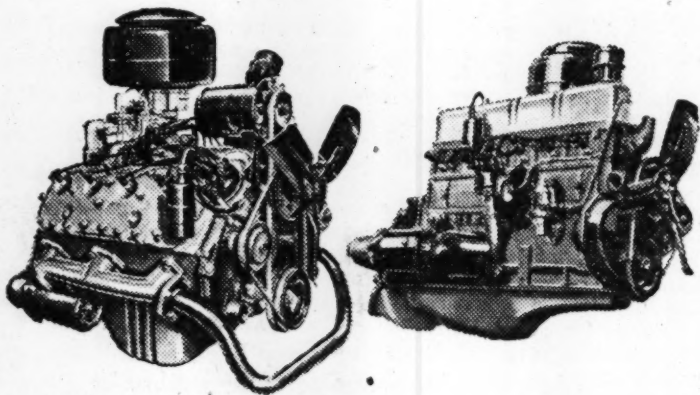

The suit was filed in U.S. District Court yesterday by Edward Newton, Billup's attorney.

PARKING IN FRONT AND REAR

You'll get more than you expect

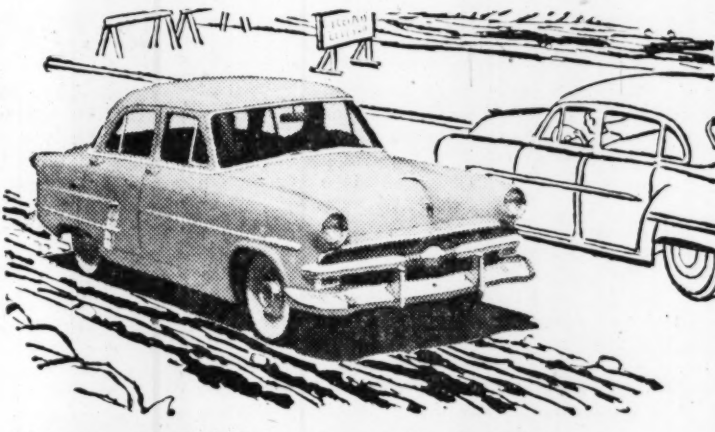

In feature after feature, Ford matches the finest . . .
with fine-car ride . . . fine-car build . . . and fine-car V-8 GO!

Check these fine car features that are yours when you buy a Ford, the one fine car in the low-price field. You get glass area galore . . . the most in Ford's field. You get more usable inside space than in any other low-priced car. Seats are foam-rubber-cushioned both front and rear. You get such Ford advances as convenient Center-Fill Fueling and suspended clutch and brake pedals. But here are the big reasons why Ford is worth more when you buy it and when you sell it, too!

V-8 or Six power

Only Ford in its field offers you a fine-car high-compression V-8 engine . . . the result of Ford's experience building more V-8's than all other makers combined. And Ford's high-compression, low-friction Six is the most modern Six in the industry. Both engines have Ford's exclusive Automatic Power Pilot which squeezes the last drop of power out of every drop of gasoline.

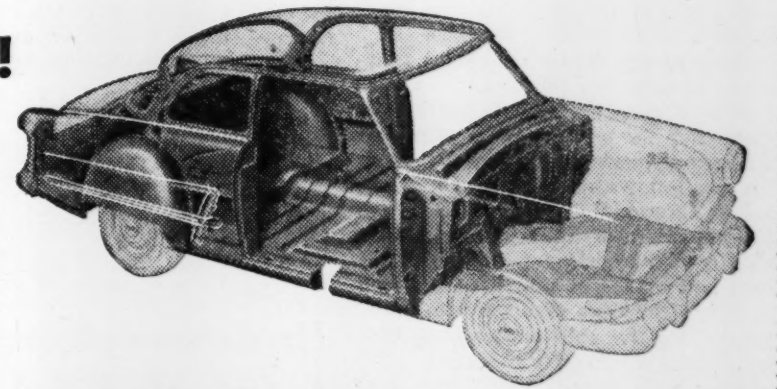

Up to 80% less road shock

Ford has reduced front end road shock (the kind you notice most) up to 80%. And by a perfect teaming-up of rear springs, diagonally-mounted rear shock absorbers and tailored-to-weight front springs, Ford has proved that a car can ride smooth as silk without gas-eating extra weight.

Master-Guide power steering

Ford Master-Guide is the last word in power steering. It does up to 75% of the steering work for you when you need it . . . yet it leaves you with a natural feel of steering on the straightaway. And it helps you control the car on rough, rutted roads. Available on all V-8 models.

Built like the finest

Ford's hull-tight body is sealed against water, dust and draft. Body panels are made of steel of the same quality and thickness as that used in the costliest cars. Ford's rugged box-section frame has five strong cross members including a special K-bar member which adds extra twist resistance . . . gives greater rigidity for longer car life.

Fordomatic Drive

It's the finest, most versatile of all automatic drives . . . combines the smoothness of a fluid torque converter and the "Go" of automatic mechanical gears. Ford also offers you Overdrive and Conventional.

WHY MARITAL BAR? BOARD ASKED

Wife's Plea To Re-Enter School Nears Cobb Court

Cobb County school officials at a hearing Saturday in Cobb Superior Court will be asked to show cause why marriage should bar a student from attending school.

Marjette Harrison Allen has filed a petition in the court asking for a writ of mandamus requiring the officials to permit Mrs. Ann Dempsey McCollum, 17-year-old Acworth High School student, to reenter school. Mrs. McCollum was dismissed the day after she married J. M. McCollum on Sept. 26, the petition states.

Defendants named in the case are T. C. Cantrell, Acworth principal; the Cobb County Board of Education, and County School Superintendent Paul Sprayberry.

Cantrell said yesterday the school has a policy against married students under a ruling of the board of trustees. A spokesman in the superintendent's office at the State Board of Education, however, said there is no statewide policy concerning married students.

4 Accused of Making Dime Slugs of Pennies

PEORIA, Ill., Oct. 21 (AP)—Federal agents today seized four men and accused them of filing down pennies to the size of dimes and dropping them in vending machines.

A Secret Service spokesman said each whittled penny invested in a machine brought returns in the form of a soft drink or peanuts, plus a nickel in change.

He said the coins were used in an industrial plant where the men are employed. They were charged with altering currency. Bonds were set at $1,000 each.

Hague's Protege Backs GOP in Governor's Race

JERSEY CITY, N.J., Oct. 21 (AP)—Frank Hague Eggers, who inherited the political mantle of his uncle, long-time Democratic boss Frank Hague, today came out for the Republican candidate for governor of New Jersey.

The move was motivated by the bitter intra-party rivalry between Eggers and Mayor John V. Kenny, the Democrat who ousted Eggers from the mayor's job in 1949 and brought about a temporary eclipse of the 30-year rule of the Hague forces here.

Eggers regained a little of his former power last spring when he was elected to the City Commission. But Kenny still controls a majority of the commission and most of the machinery of the Democratic organization in Hudson County.

Kenny is supporting the Democratic candidate for governor, Robert B. Meyner.

Miss Julia, 107, Doing Fine After Broken Hip Is Treated

A gray-haired Negro woman well known in the rural sections of Stone Mountain was treated at Grady Hospital yesterday for a broken hip and doctors said she's "doing fine."

She is 107 years old. That in part accounts for a slight tone of amazement with which doctors reported the accident to Julia Williams, who resides in Stone Mountain—Route No. 2.

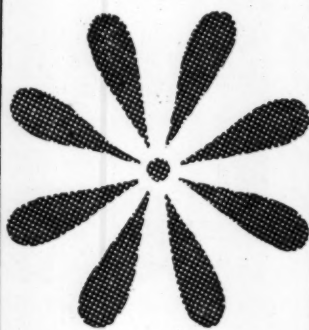

At Grady, doctors took a look at her previous hospital record and registered more amazement. The last time Miss Julia visited Grady she had her appendix removed.

That was four years ago—when she was 103.

With her condition down as "good" it seemed fairly certain that she would weather her latest medical test as she passed her appendectomy—with flying colors.

James Wilcox, a Stone Mountain farmer, brought the centenarian to Grady after she fell in her home and shattered the bone in her hip.

"Miss Julia" has been a familiar figure in her section of Stone Mountain. Even at 107 she was often seen trotting through the neighborhood carrying laundry in great bundles on her head. Many years ago she earned her living driving an axen wagon during the construction of the Georgia Railroad through the Stone Mountain area.

Davis Urges Preparation For Attack

Emphasizing the need for civil defense preparedness, Rep. James C. Davis warned last night that when and if the Russians attack this country "they will attack with a vengeance, without warning and will drop atom bombs on every strategic point in the United States."

The Fifth District congressman spoke at graduation exercises for 157 civilian volunteers of the Ground Observer Corps' Atlanta Filter Center, held in the Skyroom of the Municipal Auditorium.

Davis presented each graduate with a certificate and silver wings.

"SOLE POWER"

"A possible Russian attack would be spurred by the fact that the United States today 'is the sole power that stands across their path as the Communists seek to control the world and place it under their barbaric rule,'" the congressman pointed out.

Citing America as the "last stronghold of freedom and the last citadel of liberty," Davis said it was the American people's "spirit of genius," one that enabled them to develop such weapons as the atomic bomb and the jet plane, which has kept this country strong.

Referring to the atomic test he witnessed in Nevada in May, Davis declared, "What I saw was enough to convince me that civil defense is one of the most important parts of the nation's defense structure."

TERRIFIC POWER

Davis said he was told by scientists that the explosive power carried in the atomic artillery shell tested equalled 20,000 tons of TNT, the same destructive power of the atomic bomb dropped on Hiroshima during World War II.

Turning to civil defense measures in Congress, Davis told the defense workers that "Congress has not done what it should have done to help civil defense up to this time." He added, however, he had no information as to any new national CD measures coming up to the next session.

Citing the Atlanta volunteers as "among the class of people who make things happen," he paid tribute to them for their "earnestness and devotion to our country."

Bolton Fire Station Staff Being Readied

Steps to qualify a 14-man crew to man the new fire station under construction at Bolton were taken yesterday. Application lists were opened for firemen and those accepted by the City Personnel Department will begin a three weeks instruction course Nov. 30. The new station will be opened around Jan. 1.

Dentists Set Up Group To Defend Fluoridation

The Georgia Dental Assn. yesterday in closing sessions of its convention here authorized formation of a committee to combat "misinformation" about fluoridation of public water facilities "any time it comes up in the state."

The committee, representing the association, will "present the true facts as we know them about fluoridation of water," an association spokesman explained. The spokesman added the group would try to combat misinformation about alleged adverse effects caused by water fluoridation.

During its morning sessions, the association presented its membership and outstanding service award to the southwestern district of the association. The award honored the district, one of seven in the state, as the most active during the past year.

Dr. Bob Jackson, Adel, secretary of the district, received the membership cup from Dr. Buford Jones of Cordele.

Two Atlanta dentists, members of the association for 25 years, were honored for outstanding service to the organization and were chosen honorary fellows. They were Dr. Samuel G. Cole and Dr. Herbert D. Jaynes. Also honored was Dr. M. O. Turrentine, Columbus.

The convention which closed at noon was the largest ever held by the association, with more than 1,100 persons registered, members said.

Dr. O'Neill Sets Talks in Catholicism

Dr. James M. O'Neill, noted educator and Catholic layman, will deliver two addresses here Sunday.

His subject will be "Catholicism and American Freedom," which also is the title of a book he recently authored.

Dr. O'Neill has been spokesman for Roman Catholics in Protestant-Catholic debates on religious liberty. Observers here predicted he will present the Catholic answer to Methodist Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam's Reformation Day speech here Sunday.

Bishop Oxnam charged that Roman Catholic policies deny democratic principles. Dr. O'Neill will address the Catholic Laymen's Association convention at noon Sunday at a luncheon at the Dinkler-Plaza Hotel. At 8 p.m. Sunday he will speak at Sacred Heart Auditorium, 310 Courtland St., N.E. The night meeting will be open to the public.

Dr. O'Neill is a graduate of Dartmouth College and has served as chairman of the speech departments at Wisconsin and Michigan Universities and at Brooklyn College. He has published several books on speech and civil liberties, including "Religion and Education Under the Constitution."

Dr. Wishik, Head Of Child Survey, To Speak Friday

Dr. Samuel Wishik of the University of Pittsburgh, who is making a survey of handicapped children in Georgia, will be among the speakers at the annual meeting of the Georgia Society for Crippled Children from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Friday at the Academy of Medicine.

Other speakers will include Dr. John J. Lee of the Wayne University Graduate School and Dr. William P. Harbin, president of the Medical Association of Georgia. A panel of successful handicapped persons also will be on the program.

Dr. William T. Sanger, president of the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults and president of the Medical College of Virginia, will address a luncheon meeting at 12:30 p.m. at the Piedmont Driving Club. Interested persons are invited to the luncheon, and they should call ALpine 7661 for reservations.

Audit To Seek To Learn If Milk Price Can Be Reduced

Milk Control Board Chairman Charles G. Duncan said yesterday an audit will be made of all Georgia milk sheds and distributors to see if the price of milk can be cut.

He said the audit would begin next Monday, but explained that a number of audits have been made in the past and the board has not been able to cut prices.

Duncan also said the board will issue an order making plain a section of the milk law which permits retailers to sell eight or more quarts of sweet milk at 23 cents per quart.

Robert R. Jackson of the Atlanta Consumers' League told the board several consumers had been refused in their efforts to make such purchases. He said they succeeded only at one store.

Duncan explained that such sales are permissible but the board could not order retailers to sell eight or more quarts at 23 cents per quart. He said the milk permissive section may be confusing to some but it would be cleared up by the board. Duncan said last month that consumers can buy milk at any negotiated price if they will sign a contract for one year.

Self-Interest Is Deplored By Reuther

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP)—Walter P. Reuther, president of the CIO, said tonight the Communist challenge to freedom cannot be met "by a narrow self-interest, nor by placing a balanced budget before national security."

"It is not a challenge which can be met by adhering to discredited economic theories like those which welcome a 'little unemployment' and a 'small, controlled' recession," he declared.

In a speech prepared for a dinner concluding a two-day conference of business and professional leaders supporting the anti-Communist campaign of Radio Free Europe, Reuther said adherents to freedom cannot be won "by making profits paramount to people."

The CIO leader said the challenge to freedom can be met only by tapping the spiritual reservoirs and kindling the imagination of free people.

Henry Ford II, president of the Ford Motor Co., presided at the dinner sponsored by the Crusade for Freedom conference.

Reuther shared the program with Joseph C. Grew, chairman of the National Committee for a Free Europe and former ambassador to Japan; Under Secretary of State Walter Bedell Smith; and Dr. Marek S. Korowicz, who deserted the Polish delegation to the U. N. to claim asylum in the U.S.A.

Trick Proves Radio Pierces Iron Curtain

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP)—Joseph P. Grew former ambassador to Japan, said tonight the Communists in Czechoslovakia fell for a Western trick—and thereby proved Radio Free Europe was penetrating the Iron Curtain.

Speaking at a Crusade for Freedom conference dinner, Grew told how Radio Free Europe broadcast a story about two Czechs who "had seen the light and had stated they wanted nothing more to do with communism."

Names and addresses were given in the broadcast, Grew related, and continued:

"Within a very few days two prominent newspapers in Czechoslovakia came out with lead articles to the effect that these two men had been interviewed and that these men had branded our Radio Free Europe story as an infamous lie."

"This was fine as far as it went, but the fact is that those two men were wholly fictitious. They simply didn't exist. Radio Free Europe seldom uses fiction but as an exception had invented this story for testing purposes."

"The Communists swallowed it hook, bait and sinker. Yes, we do get through. And thank God, the Communists have never learned to say 'ouch' quietly."

Call for Stricter State Control that such incidents were violations of state regulations.

They also said that the trusty prisoner who attacked the Cobb County housewife had not been approved by the Department of Corrections for trusty status, also in violation of regulations.

Carter said the department does not approve trusty status for prisoners with records of sex offenses.

Warren promised "drastic action" to prevent such incidents as the Cobb County assault from happening again. "We are probably going to discipline somebody, but we are not going to tolerate this," he declared.

"Mr. Warren, you are co-operating but you are handicapped," Kemp said as he declared that "we have got to get control of the wardens." Tumlin added that "if the wardens had as good a spirit as you gentlemen, we wouldn't have any trouble."

Warren told the legislators that the public is to blame for some of the lax treatment of prisoners because of sympathy for them.

Georgia has about 7,000 prisoners.

To Register Your Car On Formosa—$1,500

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 21. (INS)—Illinois Secretary of State Charles Carpenter had a word of advice today for persons going to Formosa and planning to take their automobiles.

The word: "Don't."

He said that Clyde W. Organ, former Springfield resident now on Formosa, wrote that a registration fee of $1,500 a year is charged on Formosa. In Illinois, the fee for the same vehicle is $15.

Organ is leaving his car in Illinois.

ers, with only 2,200 of them confined in Tattnell State Prison at Reidsville and a few hundred at state penal branches such as those at Buford, Jesup, McRae, Louisville, Rome and Alto. The remainder are in public work camps scattered over the state.

Hatchett said the Georgia system of county camps dates back to the time when the old lease system was abolished years ago and no provision was made for housing and feeding prisoners. Under the lease system convict labor was leased to private corporations, firms and individuals who provided housing and food for them.

When the lease system was abolished about the time automobiles became increasingly numerous and more roads were needed, the county camps were established.

Benson Stays, Ike Says, in Defense of Policy

meager education given to American soldiers on their obligation to serve a free government.

He had breakfasted with Maj. Gen. Dean and he expressed the hope that this eminent former prisoner of the Communists in Korea would be retained by the Army in some position where his experiences on both sides of the battle line would rebound to the benefit of the nation.

He said the drought situation in various sections of the country was very, very serious and much relief was still necessary despite steps already taken by the federal government.

He acknowledged that the cost of living was now at a record high, but said it was far more significant that the cost of living curve was flattening out. He pleaded for a middle course between demands for higher wages and the desire of people to get more for their products.

In passing comments on foreign affairs he said Chancellor Ad-naner of Germany was a statesman and real leader and would always get a hearing from him on anything he had to say about the European situation.

He characterized the London conference of foreign ministers attended by Secretary of State Dulles as valuable and as having his approval.

The President appeared to be untroubled by the hard questioning agricultural policies and politics, but he answered all queries with some gravity. He assumed personal responsibility, drawing the fire away from Benson, in the search for a solution to the farmers' dilemma.

MUST WAIT PLAN

While he did not say so in so many words, the President implied that the farmers and the country must await the proposals that will be made by the National Agricultural Advisory Commission. That was the position he stood on a few days ago in his speech before the Future Farmers of America in Kansas City.

The defense of Benson, under attack for several months, came when a reporter asked for comment on the demand for his resignation made by Sen. Milton R. Young, (R-N.D.).

He had seen no man more anxious for the welfare of America, the consumer in the city, the use of grain, the producer of grain, the user of beef, and the producer of beef, than Benson, Eisenhower declared. He had studied the problem himself, the President continued, and he for one was not going to be critical because the Secretary of Agriculture could not produce a miraculous, one-line cure for all the evils.

CAUSES PUZZLEMENT

The President caused some puzzlement by his apparently flat declaration that he would not plunge into the campaign for the election of Republican senators and representatives next year. In view of the slim majority which the Republicans have in Congress, many party leaders believe they will need his vigorous support in order to maintain that hold.

When the question came Eisenhower said that of course he was deeply interested in what happened to the complexion of both houses of Congress, but he did not intend to use the presidency in partisan elections. He explained he had a concept that, though he was elected by only a part of the population, the occupant of the office was President of all the people. (This was a favorite expression of former President Truman.)

Under this concept, the President pursued, his responsibility was to attempt to develop an enlightened and progressive program for the benefit of all the people. Such a program, he added, would be a real umbrella for members of his party as well as other supporters.

the farm economy, he explained, have been aggravated by drought and by the "failure" of the Truman administration to "take appropriate action" which have made them more gradual and less severe.

Benson told the convention that the nation's farmers are financially strong and "well along" in the adjustment process. He declared he could not agree with the contention that surpluses in some farm products were a "calamity." As agriculture secretary, he said, he would rather deal with problems arising from too much production than too little, leaving millions of Americans hungry.

Haymes, Rita Get Bid for Mexican Film

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 21 (AP)—Singer Dick Haymes said today he and his wife, actress Rita Hayworth have been offered $500,000 cash to make their first motion picture together.

Haymes said the offer, from Campeon Films of Mexico City, also includes participation privileges which could amount to another $500,000.

The offer was made, he said, in a telegram from Cuban Calderon, president of Campeon, to Haymes' attorney, David Marcus.

Haymes said he and Miss Hayworth are enthusiastic about the matter and said the proposal will be studied "carefully and hopefully."

One stumbling block could be the singer's immigration troubles. Deportation proceedings were filed against him last spring when he left the continental United States to visit Miss Hayworth in Hawaii. Haymes is a native of Argentina.

Another stumbling block could be Miss Hayworth's contract for two more films for Columbia Studios. Haymes said Marcus is conferring on the matter with Jack Entratter, a director of Miss Hayworth's company, the Beckworth Corp.

"A STATEMENT FREE FROM BUNK OR HOKE"

by H. I. PHILLIPS
Noted Syndicated Columnist

"The hours are from eight to four, and the salary's from four to eight," they told me when I took my first job as a cub reporter. I still treasure a note reading, "Without solicitation on your part, we are raising you from $4 a week to $5."

The pittance made no difference. I had found a line of work that suited me. It led to a career as a columnist writing for papers all over the country.

I have turned out a column every day but Sunday for three decades without a vacation or a day off . . . some 9,000 columns. This never ceases to surprise interviewers who unfailingly ask, "How come?" The answer is simply that I love the job, so I've stuck to it.

That could explain my attitude toward smoking, too. Long ago I found Luckies had the taste that suited me and I've stuck to them through the years. In other words:

*I like the cigarette I smoke
(A statement free from bunk or hoke)—
There is no reason for it, brother,
Except I don't like any other!*

I smoke Lucky Strike for enjoyment and relaxation, not for the development of personality, security from ailments—real and imaginary—or to get rid of moths. To meddle with Kipling: A testimonial is only a commercial, but a good cigarette is a smoke.

A Statement About Luckies

We'd like to point out two phrases in Mr. Phillips' story: "I smoke for enjoyment" and "Long ago I found Luckies had the taste that suited me."

That's the Lucky Strike story. We believe people do smoke to enjoy themselves. We also believe you'll agree Luckies taste better.

There are two reasons why Luckies taste better. The first, naturally, is fine tobacco. (L.S./M.F.T.—Lucky Strike means fine tobacco.) Second, Luckies are made better. So, Be Happy—Go Lucky. Remember, Luckies are made by The American Tobacco Company, America's leading manufacturer of cigarettes.

Old Hoss to Harvard

In spasms of impatience at the delicate nature of the modern baseball artist, our elders will snort and paw the sod and put the weaklings to shame with the story of Charlie (Old Hoss) Radbourne. Old Hoss pitched for Providence, R. I., in the National League before Diamond Jim Brady made his first pass at Lillian Russell. He won 60 games in one season, but for the most part, that's about all even the most enthusiastic pursuer of sporting history knows of him.

How a fellow wins 60 games, and why, and was he just a cheap showoff flexing his muscles? Somehow the word never got around on Old Hoss. Pitching and winning 30 and 40 and even 60 games a year in those days was only the proper thing to do, it was assumed, for the four-day rest hadn't yet been discovered.

It wasn't the custom, though. You confirm that by reading the record book. Old Hoss himself had won 44 games one season but never 60 before or after. Then there must have been something else that went with the 60-game year. Just the other day I found out for the first time.

The season was 1884. Old Hoss had been pitching, playing the infield and outfield around the National League since 1880. For a time measure, this was four years before Connie Mack broke in as a catcher.

Providence was in a sweat for the pennant in '84 with a 10-man team that included two pitchers, Radbourne and a fellow named Charlie Sweeney. They alternated in the outfield and on the mound, pitching every other day.

About six weeks before the season ended, Sweeney went on strike. He was a pitcher, not an outfielder. He demanded the day off between games, which was as ridiculous as the 40-hour week and Charlie Dessen's demand for security. Sweeney went and the Providence club, being short in the treasury and with no television or radio to accuse, couldn't hire another pitcher, but a cheap outfielder was available.

—Without Time and a Half Overtime

Radbourne, hearing of the predicament, rushed to the office and volunteered to pitch every day rather than let the club disband. His offer was accepted, and for the next 27 days Old Hoss was the Providence pitcher. Twenty-six times he won, but in the 27th Providence was against him. He pitched a five-hitter against Buffalo and lost, 2-0.

Old Hoss won the pennant, but only hotel porters knew the agony he went through for his team. The suffering and the pain was terrific, and night after night Radbourne paid the porters two bucks to keep his arm in hot towels and liniment packs. In the morning the old soupbone was so stiff he couldn't push the elevator button, but Old Hoss pitched on and never whimpered. He kept his pain a secret from the rest of the team.

Radbourne was the greatest pitcher of his day when he accepted his burden, but the overwork practically killed his arm. He pitched on for Providence for six more years, won 20 or more five times, but that wouldn't make a fellow the toast of the town in those days.

Finally, he simply had nothing left to throw. Old Hoss went home to Bloomington, Ill., to run a billiard hall and brood over the career he had pitched away. He died in 1897, six years after he quit, at the age of 44, a melancholy man who had given his heart to his team, and who lost his desire to live when his cunning left him.

That was the Radbourne story, an elaboration on a big-type line in the record book that says he was the biggest winner in all baseball.

—C. C. Pyle and the Bunion Derbies

The story comes from a new article on the book market written by Frank G. Menke, sports' leading historian. The title is not particularly inspired, "Sports Tales and Anecdotes" ($3.75, A. S. Barnes Co.), but the yarns will grab at your memory.

"Sports Tales" opens with Radbourne and closes with the Harvard crew, class of 1852. The classic era of the '20s, of course, gets the bulk of the play, for it was in those days that sports were adopted as major commodities by the public. It happened because sports pages first reached full professional blossom in those years.

The younger generation never heard of a fellow named C. C. (Cash and Carry) Pyle, but here was a man who exerted tremendous influence on trends in sports of the times. Pyle was a reckless promoter who grew up with the '20s and whose wild schemes left him a broken and obscure man finally decimated by death in '29.

Pyle introduced Red Grange to pro football. It was the foundation of the game. He paid Suzanne Lenglen $50,000 to tour the country when the tennis star was the top female athlete of her time. But his downfall was the most fantastic sports promotion of all time, a cross-country foot race he called the "Bunion Derby."

It was created to publicize a bunion salve he planned to produce, but both the derby and the salve were a flop. Andy Payne of Claremore, Okla., won the race and a pot of $25,000, ran from coast-to-coast in 588 hours and 40 minutes. It just about broke Pyle to pay off, but the intrepid man came back with another derby before the year ('29) was out. This one finished him, and the great Pyle became a walking corpse.

Such is the backbone of the Menke book. Some will say it's for those who live in the past. If true, it's only because those days had a glamour that will never rub off.

Army Delays Casares Case

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 21 (AP)—The Army today deferred a decision on whether to induct Rick Casares, University of Florida football star.

A decision is expected tomorrow morning.

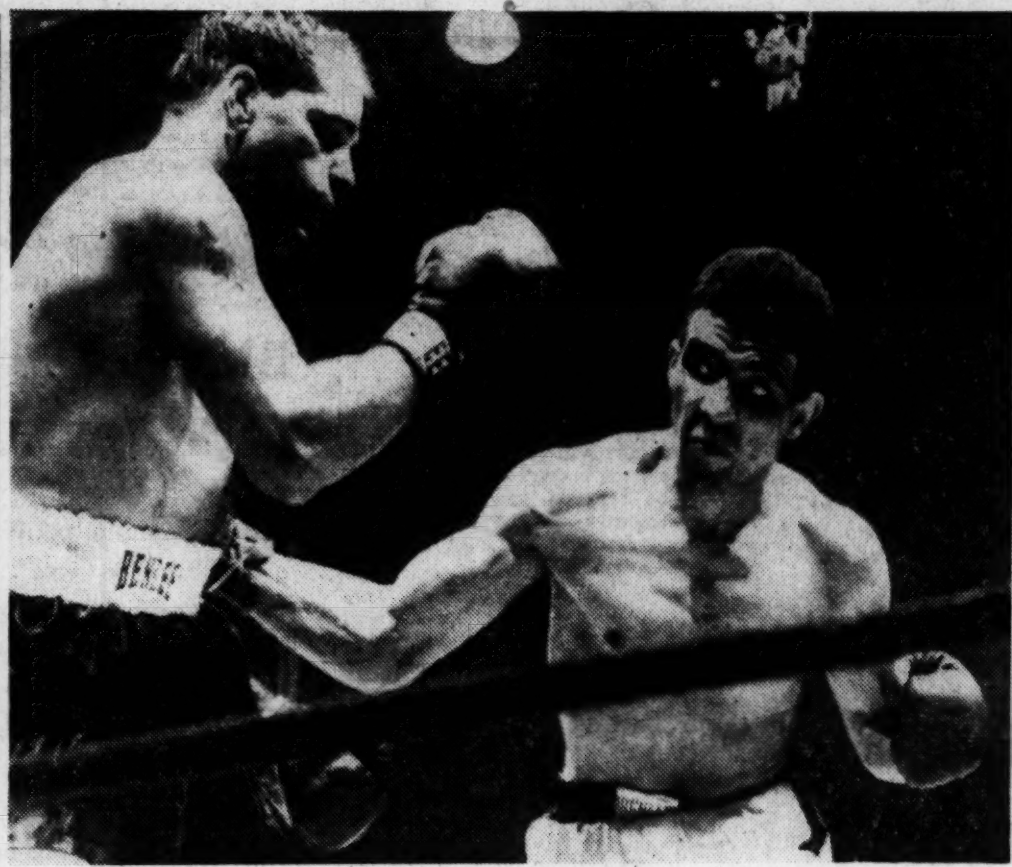

A slight shoulder separation incurred by Casares in football practice Sept. 29 raised doubt on whether the Army would take him immediately.

When he reported for his physical exam at the induction station here today the Army sent Casares to Jacksonville Naval Air Station for detailed examination of the shoulder.

Late this afternoon the Army said X-rays were still wet and doctors decided to wait until tomorrow morning to read them.

Briton Lands Second-Round Right in Eventual Loss by Decision to Bobo Olson

Notre Dame Linemen Dwarf 191-Pound-Averaging Jackets

But Tech Forwards Look Like Fastest Foes Irish Have Faced This Season

Rock Marciano fights Bobo Olson in South Bend, Ind., Saturday afternoon at 1:30. That gives you a general slant on the Georgia Tech-Notre Dame match from the angle of the scales.

It will be heavyweight against middleweight, for Notre Dame will be running at the smallest line the Irish have done business with this season, and maybe for many seasons.

Trainer Buck Andel paraded his nude Yellow Jackets across the scales at The Flats Wednesday afternoon and when the march of the light brigade was done the average was 191 pounds per man, from Sam Hensley to Dave Davis, or Henry Hair. No matter which starts at the other end, the weight will be the same—195.

In order, these are the weights of Tech's starting line: Hensley 188, Ed Gossage 200, Orville Vereen 181, Larry Morris 205, Frank Brooks 185, Bob Sherman 192 and Davis 185.

At this set of colts, Notre Dame will be throwing such agents as Art Hunter, a 226-pound tackle, Jim Schrader, 210-pound center, and tackle Frank Varrichione and guard Menil Mavraides, each 205.

So far, the Irish have been matching muscles this year with lines that were equal to their own in beef, or even heavier. Oklahoma was represented by a heavy set of forwards in the opener against the Irish. Purdue outbeefed Notre Dame and Pittsburgh threw a heavier, meaner, more adept group at the Irish than any of their first three foes.

While Tech's forwards will be lighter, they will also represent more speed than any Notre Dame has met this season. If there is a switch to weight, the Jacket replacements who'll throw the most weight around are Frank Givens (230) and Ben Daugherty (210), two reserve tackles.

This matter of line weights is of supreme importance because the Irish deal in power. It could just as well be that a flow of power at Tech's midsection might tear the Jackets apart, for the two pony guards, Vereen and Brooks, have not been shot at by such vicious power as Notre Dame will throw at them.

The Jackets survived Wednesday's program of passing and punting scrimmage with no further incident.

Tech pulls out of Atlanta airport Friday morning at 11 o'clock. They'll work out in South Bend at 2 p.m. (CST), then move over spend the night.

MAY MEET GAVILAN

Olson: 'Gave' Turpin First Few Rounds

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK, Oct. 21 (AP)—The new middleweight champion of the world said through puffed up lips and bloody teeth tonight that his winning strategy "was to give Randy Turpin the first three of four rounds and then finish fast."

"My manager (Syd Flaherty) told me to go slow," Carl (Bobo) Olson said in his bustling dressing room at Madison Square Garden after his 15-round victory for the 160 pound title.

"So I just took my time and let him wear himself out. I felt I got stronger as I went along and wasn't tired at the end."

Shortly after the bruising fight, Jim Norris, head of the International Boxing Club, said he hoped to match Olson next with welter-weight king Kid Gavilan if the Kid can take Johnny Bratton in Chicago Nov. 13.

Olson said he's willing to meet anybody and would leave the identity of his next opponent to his manager. Flaherty said he would like to arrange the Olson-Gavilan bout for San Francisco next spring.

"The hardest blow he hit me was a left hook in the middle of my face in the fourth round," Olson said.

I was stunned for a while. But long years of fighting up from gutters of Leamington Spa, England.

Turpin managed to stay in or near the middle of the ring for the first three rounds and wrung gasps of dismay from the bettors who had chosen Olson, as well as his own supporters, with a stiffly jolting performance that easily gave him a lead.

The beetle-browed man from England was much the stronger of the two and much more aggressive than he had been in any fight

Olson Batters Way to Title

Wins Unanimous Decision As Turpin Is Easy Victim

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK, Oct. 21 (INS)—Balding, weeping Carl "Bobo" Olson, 25-year-old Swedish-American-Portuguese-Hawaiian, won the middleweight championship of the rest of the world at Madison Square Garden tonight by beating rope-bound Randy Turpin in 15 rounds.

The tattooed father of three children overcame an early lead amassed by Turpin, British Champion, who held the title for three months in 1951 between bouts with Sugar Ray Robinson and came on to win more or less as he pleased.

Especially when he could bull or flim-flam Turpin against the ropes.

The verdict was unanimous.

Referee Al Berl gave Bobo nine rounds, Turpin four and called two even. Judge Arthur Susskind called it eight and seven in Bobo's behalf, and Judge Charlie Shortell saw it exactly like the International News Service score sheet—11 and 4.

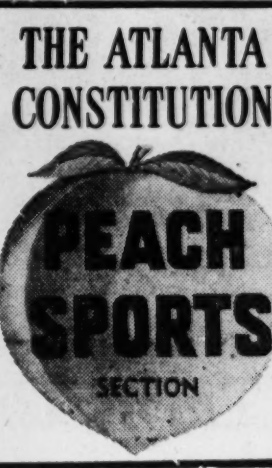

The surprisingly large crowd of 18,867, which paid $167,851 to see the bloody aggression, agreed with the court.

Robinson's vacated title was at stake tonight and Olson treated it like a steak.

But this ascension to the ancient throne unnerved him. He cried like a soap opera tragedian when Garden announcer Johnny Addie announced the verdict, though by that time of evening it was as obvious as Bobo's receding hairline. He had cut the iron-clad Turpin in the fourth, badly stunned him in the seventh, flattened him in the ninth and again in the tenth and had won going away.

The surly-looking Turpin, who trained for this fight by refusing to box and, partially as a result, entered the ring as an 11-to-5 underdog, was a hopeless neophyte whenever Olson managed to back him against the Garden's luscious green suede ropes.

Turpin appeared to dissipate every punch in his arsenal, every defense gesture he learned in his long years of fighting up from

JUST TWO HAPPY JACKET DAYS

Notre Dame Turns Tech Every Way But Loose Since 16-Game Series Started 31 Years Ago

By EDWIN POPE

If Georgia Tech's football team can be frightened after 31 exposures without defeat, a look at its gory 16-game history against Notre Dame might do it.

Tech has won only twice, 13-0 in 1928, 13-6 in 1942. The other 14 times, Notre Dame has amassed margins ranging from 35-7 in 1923 to 55-13 exactly 20 years later.

The Jackets may best realize the enormity of their anti-Irish assignment at South Bend, Ind., Saturday by checking a dreary travelogue that started in 1922, when Winnie Winkle wore dresses down to her heels, sweet milk was going for 12 cents a quart and the Spring Street Viaduct was still in the talking stage:

1922—Paul Castner bucked for two touchdowns as Red Barron's fumbles ruined the Jacket effort in a 13-3 loss. Jimmy Brewster kicked a field goal for Tech's only score. A lone bright light: Walter Mitchell, whose son Wade now is a freshman quarterback at Tech, showed promise as a halfback.

1923—Notre Dame's Four Horsemen of Elmer Layden, Don Miller, Harry Stuhldreher and Sleepy Jim Crowley racked Tech, 35-7. Cracked a reporter: "The critics who called Notre Dame the greatest team on earth were too modest in their estimate."

1924—"Crippled" Notre Dame won, 34-3, as Ivan Williams dropkicked Tech's only score. Irish lineman Adam Walsh played with two broken hands and about all that Tech could clap about was the superiority of Doug Wycoff over Don Miller.

1925—Tech's W. A. Alexander saved his first team for Southeastern Conference opposition and Knute Rockne's Notre Dammers won, 13-0. Rex Enright and Christy Flanagan starred for the victors.

1926—Mussolini escaped a sixth assassination attempt but Notre Dame carried out its sixth straight execution of Tech, 12-0. The Irish dressed out 80 players but the Jackets outplayed their conquerors in the second half.

1927—Notre Dame, entering its 24th year without loss on its home Cartier Field, stopped Warner Mizell and Stumpy Thomason and romped, 26-7. Lindbergh visited Atlanta to give the city something happier to talk about.

1928—The heyday of Greta Garbo and Bobby Walthour . . . and the high day of Tech. Mizell bucked over for one touchdown and Father Lumpkin intercepted a pass to set up another as Tech finally cracked the Irish invincibility, 13-0. Rockne put in a sub backfield and first-string line to wear down Tech; the plan backfired. One joyously pro-Tech correspondent wrote: "The gigan-

CHICAGO, Oct. 21. (AP)—The old swami, tripped up in Big 10 only by Purdue last week, gives his crystal ball a brisk polish:

NOTRE DAME 21, GEORGIA TECH 14—All good things must end, and that means the Yellow Jackets' streak of 31 games without defeat appears doomed. . . . Notre Dame, rated No. 1 nationally, is in quest of its fourth straight triumph of the season. . . . It figures to be a battle of opportunists (the Irish have recovered 11 fumbles and intercepted six passes in victories over Oklahoma, Purdue and Pitt.)

Johnny Bosch Stumpy Thomason

tic Irish jinx staggered to its feet, brushed the dust from its bloody uniform and wandered unnoticed from Grant Field—defeated."

1929—Frank Carideo uncoiled a 75-touchdown run and Jack Cannon gave one of the greatest guard showings in Grant Field history as Depression struck Tech early and Notre Dame rolled, 26-6.

1938—Maybe the Irish were "outsized all the way," as Coach Elmer Layden said, but they still won, 14-6. Howard Ector, Gay Thrash and Billy Gibson were heroes of a fine Tech stand.

1939—Notre Dame finally fought off 140-pound Johnny Bosch and won, 17-14, for their closest margin.

1940—Bob Ison, Buck Murphy, Ector and Bosch almost overturned Irish before losing, 26-20. 1941—One month until Pearl Harbor, but series back to normal. Notre Dame 20, Tech 0, as Steve Juzwik, Angelo Bertelli and George Murphy ran wild here.

1942—Ralph Plaster and Pat

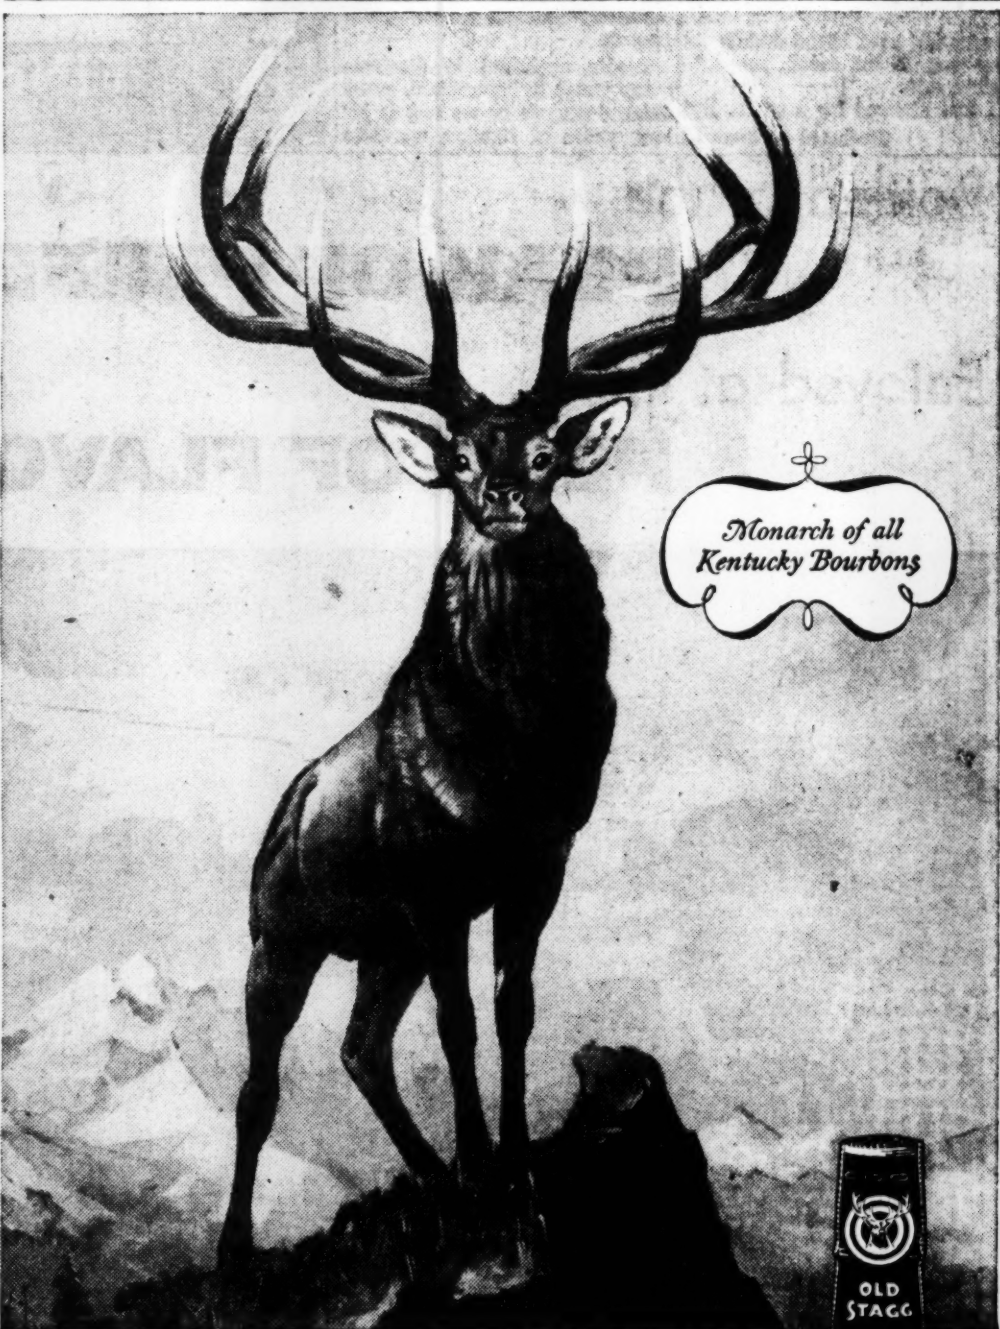

McHugh scored pressure-packed touchdowns and Tech won, 13-6. Mutt Manning, Jack Marshall and Jack Helms were aces of Jackets' second and last triumph of series.

1943—Bertelli, Creighton Miller and John Yonakor tore Jackets to shreds, 55-13, in low Tech point of rivalry.

1944—Coach Bobby Dodd made debut handling squad for bedridden Bill Alexander but Notre Dame's Terry Brennan, Johnny Lujack and Bob Kelly steam-rolled Tech, 21-0. 1945—Series mercifully called off for a while after Notre Dame rolled up 40-7 crushing on Grant Field. Boley Danciewicz, Phil Colella, Joe Gasparella and Elmer Angsman just out-

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 21. South Carolina, Clemson and a carnival-crazed throng of gridiron fanatics converge on this, the Palmetto State's capital city, tomorrow and everyone for miles around can tell it's Big Thursday once again.

Meeting for the 51st time since 1896 in one of the nation's most bitter intra-state rivalries, the contestants are expected to pack 35,000 fans into Carolina Stadium for the big game. Kickoff is scheduled for 2 p.m.

For the first time in several years, Clemson has been ruled the underdog and that hasn't bothered Tiger coach Frank Howard one whit.

He's faced South Carolina's Rex Enright across this stadium seven times — and come off with only one victory and a tie in all that time.

Most of the time his Tigers were the favorites, as in the year they went undefeated, won nine games and ended up beating Miami in the Orange Bowl, 15-14. That was the year South Carolina ended up with a 3-4-2 record. And that year of 1950 was when the Gamecocks held the touted Tigers to a 14-14 tie.

This year, however, it's Clemson having a losing season and South Carolina going into the game with a winning streak. The odds-makers have made the Gamecocks a seven-point favorite and Howard is happy.

Even though his country boys have lost two in a row after beating Presbyterian and tying Boston College, they've had the advantage of playing some real tough clubs.

Sophomore quarterback Don King, injured in the 20-0 loss to Maryland and a sideline observer in the 39-7 debacle at Miami, should be in good shape for tomorrow's game.

Dark: With Mays, We'll Contend

Condensed From Wire Reports
New York Giant shortstop Alvin Dark figures that the New York Giants will be hot contenders for the National League pennant next year with Willie Mays back in harness.

concerned, Dark said. "That Brooklyn had a whale of a ball club, but, well, the Yankees are just a great clutch team."

Manager Charlie Grimm will meet the 1954 edition of the Milwaukee Braves at Bradenton, Fla., on Feb. 22.

Roger Bowman, star hurler for the Hollywood Stars last season, was told by a physician that he would not suffer any permanent harm from the shotgun wounds he received Monday.

Ray Shearer and Glenn Gorbous, Mobile outfielders, were sold to the Montreal Royals. The Bears purchased 10 Brooklyn Dodgers farmhands including Ted Barbarito, top Three I League slugger, and Kent Pfister, one of the Western League's top batters.

Roland Perdue Comes to Athens As Promising Tar Heel Tackle

By BIFF ROBERTS
CHAPLAIN, N.C., Oct. 21—If a successful varsity career can be based on early season showings then Roland Perdue, of College Park, Ga., has a spot set aside for him at tackle in the University of North Carolina line for the next couple of years.

Although only a sophomore, Perdue has looked so good that he now runs a strong second team position for the Tar Heels. Take into consideration that the only man above him at the right tackle position is a senior and add the fact that Coach George Barclay's system calls for equally strong first and second teams and it's easy to see that Perdue has done a man-sized job in his second year of play.

Last year as a freshman he moved up from the junior varsity during mid-season to help the falling Tar Heel forces and until injuries set him down he had helped re-vitalize the tackle position to a certain extent.

There was a thought of moving him to guard this fall but the Georgia youngster nixed that idea quickly by showing the Carolina coaches his worth as a tackle. In fact, he even offered improvement over his freshman performance.

Roland is one of the lightest tackles—if you call 195 pounds light—on the team but he easily outdoes some of his heavier teammates. That "light" 195 pounds is spread over a 6-1 frame.

Perdue came here highly recommended and he hasn't let any of his rooters down. In high school at College Park High School he was chosen to the All-Greater Atlanta, All-State, and

FOOTBALL ROUNDUP

Maroon Fullback Out for Alabama

Compiled From Constitution Wire Reports

Mississippi State's hopes of upsetting Alabama Saturday were jarred yesterday when first-string fullback George Evans entered the hospital with an infected sinus.

Evans, leading Maroon ground-gainer in last week's loss to Kentucky, was replaced by Bill King, a sophomore fullback.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala.—Quarterback Bart Starr was hitting his targets with more accuracy than at any time in several weeks in Alabama's spirited practice session. He clicked on five of his first six tosses, including two touchdown heaves.

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—Frank Varrichione, 205-pound Notre Dame tackle, was named lineman of the week by the Associated Press for his impressive play against Pittsburgh last week. Varrichione, who'll be a big obstacle in Georgia Tech's path Saturday, was the first tackle to win the award this season.

BATON ROUGE, La.—Bill Harris, 240-pound tackle, has regained his starting assignment with Louisiana State. Harris was the standout of a long scrimmage, as the Tigers prepared for Saturday's game with Florida.

GAINESVILLE, Fla.—Gloom hovered over the Florida practice field, as Coach Bob Woodruff scratched guard Joe D'Agostino, quarterback Dick Allen and halfback Jackie Simpson from Saturday's action list due to injuries.

NEW ORLEANS, La.—Coach Bear Wolf tested freshman John Caruso and Bruce Waters and halfback Les Kennedy at quarterback, after Ray Weidenbacher was declared out of the Auburn game.

OXFORD, Miss.—Mississippi, expecting an Arkansas aerial barrage Saturday, devoted its practice session to pass defense. Coach Johnny Vaught terms Arkansas' Lamar McHan "one of the finest passers we'll face."

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark.—Tailback Billy Pickens and fullback Henry Moore, out for three weeks with injuries, were running at full steam in Arkansas' brisk scrimmage session.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—Sophomore Dave Griffith will start at tailback in place of injured Jimmy Wade when Tennessee takes on Louisville Saturday.

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—Vandy probably will start an all-sophomore backfield against Virginia. Coach Art Guepe has a unit consisting of Billy Holmes, quarterback; Charley Horton and Floyd Teas, halfbacks, and Bill Krietenmeyer operating.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind.—Indiana will start six sophomores against Iowa on Saturday.

LAFAYETTE, Ind.—The injury jinx that has hounded Purdue all season struck quarterback Roy Evans and knocked him out for 10 days. The Boilermakers meet powerful Michigan State this weekend.

VILLANOVA, Pa.—Coach Art Raimo of Villanova is toying with the idea of using halfback Ben Addievo against Kentucky Saturday night. Joe McNicholas, regular T-man, is hurt.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill.—J. C. Carolina, Negro star from Columbia, S.C., took extra punting practice for Illinois because of the uncertainty that regular kicker Ken Miller will be ready for Syracuse.

MIAMI—Coach Andy Gustafson on Miami's prospects against Maryland: "Miami has no chance."

DALLAS—SMU will be full strength for the first time this year when the Mustangs engage Kansas.

AUBURN END SECOND IN SEC

Tiny Pyburn Mystery to Coaches

Special to The Constitution
AUBURN, Ala., Oct. 20—Sophomore Jim Pyburn, diminutive Auburn end who most college coaches frowned at, is second in the SEC in receiving and among the top six ends in the nation.

Weighing only 175, Pyburn has caught 14 aeriels for 221 yards and two touchdowns. On defense, he has been a demon, smearing the opposition for numerous losses.

No one can explain the reason for Pyburn's effectiveness. The Auburn coaches know that there is no better receiver anywhere but his small stature leaves them unsure. There are taller, heavier, faster, and stronger receivers in the SEC. "Pyburn is a competitor — I mean a fiery competitor," Coach Shug Jordan brags of his sophomore find. "Somehow he manages to get open when no one else can and when a quarterback throws toward him, he'll get it 90 per cent of the time, whether covered or not."

Releases from the Southeastern Conference office disclose that Pyburn is second only to Georgia's John Carson in receiving. The Zeke Bratkowski-target has gobbled in 24 passes for 378 yards.

Bobby Freeman is the next high Auburn man on Commissioner Bernie Moore's statistics. The husky junior quarterback ranks sixth among the SEC's passers with 18 completions in 37 attempts for 270 yards, and seventh in total offense with 356 yards. Speedster Fob James Jr. is high among the rushers with 226 yards on 36 running attempts for an average of 6.3 yards per rush, to rank eighth among the conference's leaders. James' 32.6 yards average on 10 punts ranks him 12th in punting.

The Plainsmen have been sharpening their passing game all week with Tulane in mind Saturday afternoon in Mobile. Freeman has kept one eye peeled on Pyburn, his favorite receiver, but has been connecting consistently with end Vince Nardone and right-half Bobby Duke.

MANAGER OF YEAR
Yanks' Casey Stengel

Ole Case Repeats as Pilot of Year

NEW YORK, Oct. 21—Casey Stengel, only manager ever to pilot a team to five consecutive championships, today was named manager of the year for the second straight time and fourth time in the last five years.

It was practically no contest as the 64-year-old skipper of the New York Yankees drew 107 of the 179 votes cast by members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America in the annual Associated Press poll.

Stengel first won the poll in 1949 and repeated in 1950 and 1952. He easily netted more votes than the combined total of the 15 other managers.

Charlie Grimm, who did a splendid job steering the Milwaukee Braves into second place in the National League pennant race, was runner-up to Stengel. Grimm received 30 votes, six more than Charlie Dressen, who placed third.

Paul Richards, who directed the Chicago White Sox into third place in the American League, was fourth. He was named on 10 ballots. Lou Bourdeau, who did a splendid job piloting a rookie-dominated Boston Red Sox team into fourth place, received four votes.

Single votes went to Al Lopez, Eddie Stanky and Rogers Hornsby.

IN NATIONAL RANKINGS

Carson 2d as Receiver, Brat 3d as Punter

NEW YORK, Oct. 21—A pair of Big Ten powerhouses and a speedster from the South are leading the race for individual scoring honors in major college football ranks.

They are Bob Watkins of Ohio State, Mickey Bates of Illinois and Johnny Mapp of Virginia Military Institute, tied for the point-making lead with eight touchdowns and 48 points each. The race was thrown wide open by the disqualification of Joe Ulin of San Jose State, who was declared ineligible because of his previous junior college competition. Ulin had 11 touchdowns and 66 points.

Other individual pace setters are: Pass catching—Ken Buck of College of the Pacific, who has caught 30 passes for 364 yards and two touchdowns in five games.

Punting—Sammy Morrow of Texas Christian University, who has averaged 48.4 yards on 12 tries in four games.

Punt runbacks—Aramis Dando of Southern California, who has returned 11 punts for 206 yards.

Kickoff returns—Jimmy Thacker of Davidson, who has brought eight kickoffs back for a total of 237 yards.

Threatening the trio of scoring leaders are Al Talley of California, with seven touchdowns, and Joe Mastrogianni of Wyoming, with six touchdowns and six extra points, owning 42 points apiece.

Idaho's Jay Buhler and Mississippi State's Jack Parker have 41 points, followed by Dick Imer of Montana with 38 and Corky Taylor of Kansas State with 37. Parker was scoring leader last year.

Buck, a six-foot-four end, grabbed 22 passes in his first three games to assume a long lead over his rival in that department, but Georgia's John Carson is gaining fast with 24. Carson already has passed Buck in yardage, with 378 to 364. But the title is decided on the number of passes caught.

Max McGee of Tulane is runner-up to Thacker in kickoff return with 216 yards.

Idaho's Flip Kieffner is second to Morrow in punting with a 45.9-yard average and Georgia's Zeke Bratkowski is third with 41.4.

Bass and Sylvan Go After West Fulton, Wolves Tonight

Washington Host To Thomson

By CHARLIE ROBERTS
Jimmy Green's Sylvan Golden Bears and Phil Alexander's Bass Blue Wave, both needing victories to retain any chance at all for Southern and Northern Division championships in Atlanta's City League high school football race, get back to the business at hand tonight.

Bass, winner of four straight before coming a cropper to North Fulton, 38-12, and unbeaten North side, 18-14, will mix it with winless West Fulton at Grady Stadium at 8 o'clock.

Sylvan, also with a 4-2 chart for the year, will pop leather with the victory-starved Southwestern Wolves at Cheney Stadium. Sylvan's lone Southern Division defeat was at the hands of Carl Fletcher's surprising Smith Smithies, 13-7, but they still retain a good chance to be in title contention all the way.

Chub Jenkins' Wolves, playing a murderous early-season schedule, have scored only six points to 114 for six foes yet have given a good account of themselves each outing. They bowed only 6-0 to Brown last week, only 15-0 to still unbeaten College Park.

Jack Hogg's sophomore-studded West Fulton crew has tallied only 12 points to foes' 159 but, like Southwestern, scored one touchdown against Grady, the loop's defensive leader.

Bass, with two dangerous threats in Hugh Gatlin and Pee-wee Phil Heister, and Sylvan, ditto with Gene Cunningham and Tommy Burnett, still are regarded as being among the league's tougher eleven.

Only four other games are scheduled in the state, Thomson at Washington, Gainesville at Athens, Cassville at Trion and Phenix City, Ala. at Jordan in Columbus.

Peck Hickman In for Mundorff At Louisville

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 21.—Peck Hickman, the University of Louisville's basketball coach, today was named its new athletic director to succeed Roy Mundorff, recently resigned.

In making the announcement, Dr. Philip Davidson, school president, said other coaches at the school had been consulted and had enthusiastically gone for Hickman.

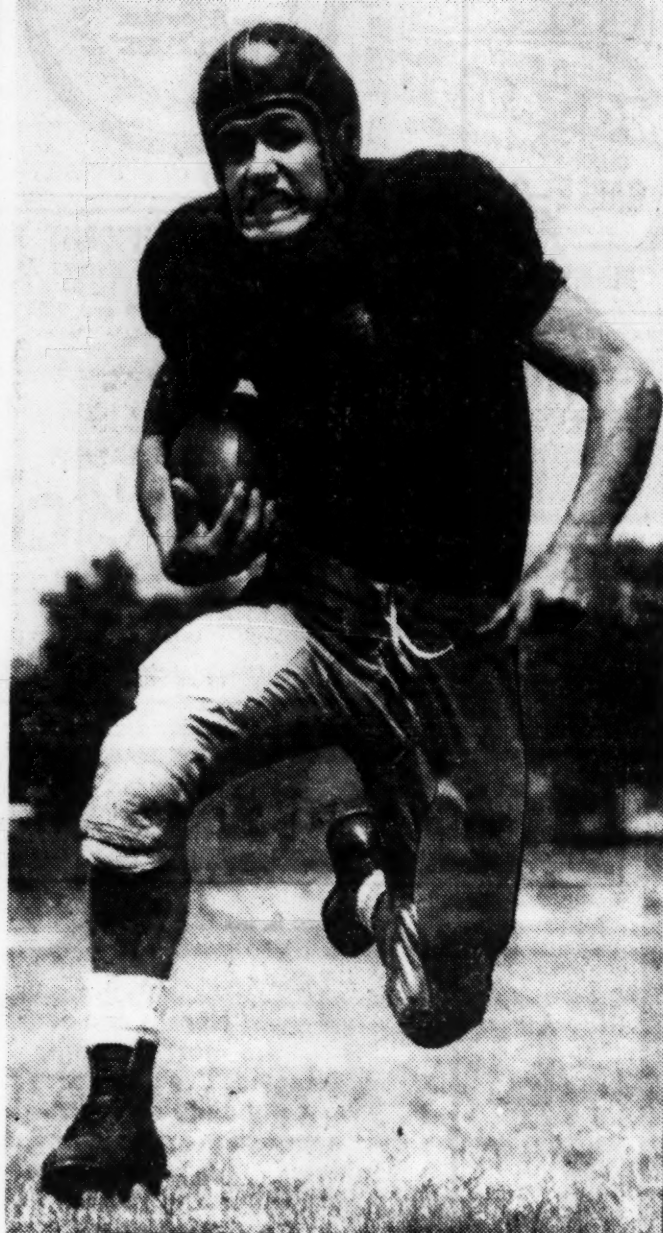

The new athletic director said he intends to pursue in the scheduling of games the policy set down by the university—a policy seeking more competition with state schools and others in this area.

Hickman, who has been cage coach 14 years, will continue in that capacity.

Classifications Retained For Georgia Preppers

LaGrange Promoted to 1-AA; Trio Can Drop to Class A

THOMASTON, Ga., Oct. 21.—The football committee of the Georgia High School Association today recommended that present school classifications be retained.

The recommendation also included a provision for automatically stepping up the classification of schools that have increased their enrollment to a point qualifying them for a higher classification.

High schools with an average daily attendance of more than 650 are grouped in Class AA; those with 300 to 600 in Class A; 200-300 in class B and under 200 in class C.

The only school automatically advancing to AA rating is LaGrange. It now has 671 students and is in the western division of Region 4A.

LaGrange was assigned to region 1AA, where the school will be in the league with Albany, Lanier of Macon, Moultrie, Thomaston, and Columbus, Baker and Jordan.

Schools moving up from class B to class A will be Ocala which now has 421 students; Blackshear, now with 320; Screven county, 313; Statesboro 312; and Pepperell 334.

OLSON

since his winning effort against Robinson.

Olson was beaten back, or muscled back, by short and jarring jabs and many more long rights than Turpin is accustomed to throwing. Olson fought back with a flurry at the start of the third, a flurry that was a harbinger of mayhem to come, but bully-boy Turpin absorbed the punishment like a blotter taking a drop of ink and was clearly superior in a toe-to-toe conflict at the end of the round.

Olson, son of an old army sergeant turned federal narcotics man in Hawaii, began making Turpin look like a dope in the fourth. Turpin was digging away at him like twin pistons when Bobo stepped back, feinted, and hit Turpin with a sucker right that opened a jagged wound just under the Englishman's left eye. Randy's ordeal had begun.

Like a fencer wielding a blunt instrument, his glove, Olson stabbed at Turpin's bad eye in the fifth—and then ignoring the eye, hit upon the plan of pinning Randy against the ropes.

Turpin instantly showed he was allergic to rope. He would fight stoutly enough in mid-ring, but once he felt the caress of that green plush against his cafe-au-lait back, he'd freeze.

And that was the story of the rest of the fight; the story of Olson's triumph. Through the sixth and seventh the crowd comprehended Olson's technique and gave a roar of encouragement each time the earnest-looking man of many blood-lines pinned Turpin's back to the rope wall.

At the end of the seventh, Olson began to do more than pin him there and slap the unprotesting Turpin at will. He began hurting him. Turpin fought back desperately in the eighth, kept the contest in mid-ring, sprang out of a locked-horns duel and dazed Olson with a long right.

It was a jaunt Turpin who danced back to his corner, but it was about the last round he would win.

In the fifteenth, the English fighter momentarily delayed Olson's rush to victory with a hard right to the head, but Bobo soon had him against the ropes, piling up more points without hardly the semblance of any resistance. And it was all over except the crowd's cheers and the new champion's tears.

Tech Shows Top Defense In League

BIRMINGHAM, Oct. 21.—Notre Dame will be bucking the Southeastern Conference's stoutest defense when the Irish meet Georgia Tech Saturday.

But oddly enough, the unbeaten conference leaders don't do much shining—statistically speaking—in other departments of a report on team performances by SEC Commissioner Bernie Moore today.

For the Jackets rank eighth in total offense with an average of 268.8 yards gained per game. De-rensively, Tech has held its opponents to an average of 161 yards per game in five contests.

Tech ball-hawking gives it the conference lead in opponents' fumbles recovered with 15. But the Jackets have lost the ball by fumbling 12 times, one of the worst showings in the SEC this season.

Auburn leads the offense with an average of 325 yards per start. The Tigers picked up an average of 212 yards rushing and 113 passing, and have gained 1,300 yards in the four contests.

Georgia Tech has been nipped for only 101.8 yards rushing and 59.2 yards passing per game, giving up 805 yards in all.

Mississippi is second to Auburn offensively with 1,554 yards in five games. The Rebels gained an average of 177 yards rushing and 133.8 passing, tying with Georgia for aerial leadership.

Tennessee, which hamstrung Alabama's passing attack last week end, has the SEC's best pass defense, giving up an average of only 44.8 yards per game.

Georgia has the best punting average of 42.9 yards, pushed by Alabama with 39.8.

Olson said he regarded Turpin as the toughest man he ever fought outside Robinson.

"He was awkward and he worried me the way he rolled with the punches. I think he's a tougher fighter than Sands (the late Dave Sands, who beat Olson twice)."

Olson is the father of four children. He said his wife and children were viewing the fight from their home in San Francisco.

Flaherty said he planned a series of exhibitions for the champion, probably starting with a tour of the Orient this winter.

Flaherty said he planned a series of exhibitions for the champion, probably starting with a tour of the Orient this winter.

He did not make the announcement that some London newspapers expected him to make after the fight, and Jack Solomons, the British promoter, said none would become forthcoming.

"I think I could have stopped him in eight if I was right mentally," said Turpin faintly, lying on a bench and surrounded by American and British newspapermen.

Turpin has had marital troubles and has been named in a divorce suit.

"Why did you stay on the ropes?" he was asked.

"Search me."

Turpin said he had no objection to the fact the referee permitted considerable clinching and infighting, something that is not done in England.

"It's the American style," said Turpin.

"I'll fight anyone," Turpin declared, as if to put at rest rumors he might retire.

"I felt as strong as ever at the finish, but I was just missing," he said. "No, he didn't hurt me—not even when he knocked me down."

"No, my trouble wasn't physical—it was mental."

Not Defying U.S. or U.N. On Power, Israel Insists

By JAY WALZ

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21—Israeli representatives rejected today American charges that it was "defying" either the United States or the United Nations in the Jordan River development controversy.

The embassy, in a statement, said Israel's record was rather one of seeking international co-operation in the development of water power in the Israel-Jordan-Syria region. It was urged, therefore, that the dispute over diversion of Jordan waters be investigated with "a completely open mind."

The statement was the first response by Israeli officials to the announcement yesterday that the United States had held up further economic aid for Israel until United Nations orders were complied with. However, the embassy said it did not wish now to comment on United States foreign aid programs for the Middle East.

There was no further comment on the situation at the State department, and at the White House conference said only that he had discussed the aid deferment with Secretary Dulles.

The Israeli Embassy statement denied charges of "defying" the United Nations, arguing that no Jordan River water has so far been diverted as a result of Israel's hydro-electric power development.

Syria had complained against a canal, under construction, that would divert the river water at a point near the Syrian border. A special U.N. commission, headed by Gen. Vagn Bennike of Denmark, ordered Israel to stop the project to avoid water diversion at this time. Israel appealed the order, but has not stopped work on the canal and a dam.

Shock Device Revives Heart Victim

DETROIT, Oct. 21—An electronic heart stimulator dramatically revived a 50-year-old patient here today after his heart had stopped beating for 75 seconds.

It also restarted the patient's heart which stopped momentarily twice later.

The patient is suffering from "a heart block" and is in critical condition at Detroit's Receiving Hospital. Slim hope is held for his permanent recovery, but Dr. Ernest Gardner said:

"He would have been dead several hours ago if the machine hadn't started his heart beating again."

The machine, known as "the cardiotor," was built at Wayne University where Dr. Gardner heads the Department of Anatomy in the College of Medicine. The original idea came from Jean Rosenbaum, now a fourth-year medical student at Wayne. Gardner, Rosenbaum and Darwood Hansen, research assistant in electronics, designed and built it.

Dr. Gardner explained the machine shocks the stopped heart into contracting again. It sends 80 to 90 electrical impulses per minute, each lasting about 1/100th of a second, until the heart develops a normal rhythm.

The shocks have a strength of 40 volts, compared to 110 volts in household current.

One of the machine's two electrodes is attached to the skin of the chest. The other electrode is inserted through a needle in the chest cavity to a point where it actually touches the heart.

The cardiotor can be plugged into any standard electrical outlet.

Today's was the first use of the machine on a human, although it had been widely tested on animals. Despite its dramatic demonstration, Dr. Gardner said the cardiotor will have limited uses in heart stoppage cases. He thinks it would be useful in the operating room when a heart stops while a patient is undergoing surgery.

Italy Slay Trial Hears Gold Hunt Is Still On

By RICHARD EHRMAN

NOVARA, Italy, Oct. 21 (AP)—As late as last month there were hints that a hunt may still be on for the missing fortune in gold of U. S. Maj. William Holohan's secret mission, an Italian investigator said tonight.

Two former U. S. members of that wartime mission and three Italian partisans are on trial for slaying the major, their commander.

The Americans, former Lt. Aldo Icardi of Pittsburgh, Pa., and former Sgt. Capt. Lo Dolce of Rochester, N. Y., are being tried in absentia.

An Italian Secret Service investigator who worked on the case said in an interview during a trial recess:

"It is strange, but as recently as a month ago we learned that a former officer in the U. S. Office of Strategic Services had come back to Italy and contacted persons in this area trying to recover any documents Holohan or Icardi may have left. We were able to identify him and have notified United States authorities."

MUCH GOLD

The Italian investigator, whose name could not be used, said Holohan's arms supply mission "had a very, very great amount of gold and dollars to carry on its work."

"We were never even able to find out exactly how much," he said. "All disappeared."

Today's most dramatic witness was a shapely Italian brunette who worked with the Holohan mission as a partisan messenger.

She is Miss Marina Duelli, 32, who now designs fashions in Geneva, Switzerland.

She testified that after Holohan's death, Icardi tried to have her killed because she kept asking questions about the major's disappearance.

DEATH SENTENCE

"Finally," she testified, "he gave me a letter to take to a partisan chief. I sensed something."

Clark Undecided On Citadel Offer

CHARLESTON, S. C., Oct. 21 (AP)—Gen. Clark said today after visiting The Citadel that he has not decided whether to accept an offer to become president of the South Carolina military college.

He promised an answer "shortly," but refused to be held to any specific date.

"You know this is a vital decision," he said. "I've made many decisions in my military career. This is a decision that will affect the rest of my life."

Dodd To Spark Football Show

Georgia Tech's head football coach Bobby Dodd will play a new role when he is featured on TV tonight. He will appear in the role of moderator on the football show, Gridiron Stars.

Guest panelists on the show will be Chick Hosch and Guy Tiller. The show will be seen on WAGA-television beginning at 7 p. m.

Tito Puts 'If' On Trieste Conference

Won't Go Unless Full Issue Open

New York Times News Service Special to The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21—The Big Three Western powers have formally proposed a five-nation conference on Trieste and Yugoslavia has conditionally accepted, Yugoslav officials reported today.

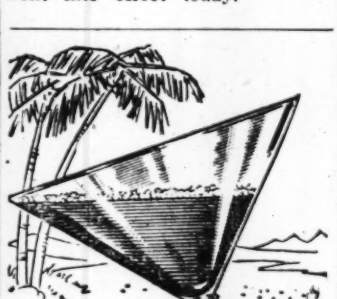

Vladimir Popovic, Yugoslav ambassador to the United States, said at a luncheon meeting of overseas writers that the three Western governments had sent invitations to Yugoslavia and Italy but embassy sources explained later that, since the invitation did not name either place or time for the talks, the communication would be better described as a proposal.

The ambassador, who observed that Belgrade had been one of the "initiators" of a Trieste conference, emphasized that his government would attend only if the whole question of the disputed territory were thrown open for discussion.

But Yugoslavia would refuse to attend, he went on, if the conference was called merely to "find a more suitable form" for the U. S.-British decision of Oct. 8.

GI Gets Honor Medal: Saved 3, Killed 6

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (INS)—The Medal of Honor was awarded today to a former infantryman from Kentucky who rescued three wounded comrades.

The award goes to Ernest F. West of Wurtland, Ky. West was on a patrol—for which he had volunteered—on the famed "Heartbreak Ridge" in Korea the night of Oct. 12, 1952. It was ambushed and suffered casualties, in which the patrol leader, an unnamed lieutenant, was wounded.

West made his way through heavy fire to rescue the officer. Three enemy troops attacked him and he killed them with accurate rifle fire. He carried the lieutenant to safety, returned to the ambush area and brought out two more wounded, killing three more enemy attackers.

Periled by Deadly Acid, Town Asks Ike's Help

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP)—President Eisenhower was asked today to help Horse Cave, Ky., get rid of 45,000 gallons of chemicals which have put the community in "mortal danger."

In his appeal, Sen. Earle Clements (D-Ky.), explaining the danger is from "possibly deadly contamination of the water supply due to leakage" of the arsenic trichloride into the ground.

The chemicals are stored in leaky tanks along the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, left there four years ago by a now defunct oil company.

Moisture reacts on the chemicals by producing deadly hydrochloric acid fumes and arsenic oxide.

Officials in the community of 1,545 are especially worried now because showers are predicted for Kentucky this week.

Clements' telegram requested Eisenhower to authorize the Army's Chemical Corps, which has sold the acid to Shaw Oil Co., to accept return at once.

Clements said he had been advised it will be "shipped free to any arsenal or Army post in the United States."

Pleas to Secretary of the Army Stevens to take back the acid have been rejected, Clements told the President, adding:

"Urgent that action be taken today." Both the oil company and the railroad were indicted on charges of maintaining a common nuisance but the case is still to be tried.

France Demands Vietnam Yes or No on Friendship

Laniel Regime Caught in Middle
By Reluctance To Stay in Union

By HARVEY HUDSON

PARIS, Oct. 21 (AP)—The French government today decided to ask Vietnamese Chief of State Bao Dai and the Vietnamese cabinet to give a definite statement on the extent of Vietnam's friendship for France.

The government is caught between a Vietnamese reluctance to stay in the French Union after it is given independence and the resentment of many French deputies over what they regard as ingratitude. The National Assembly has scheduled a debate Friday on the whole Indochina question. Some observers believe the situation is grave enough to endanger the cabinet of Premier Joseph Laniel.

TENSION MOUNTING

Opposition to the costly seven-year Indochina war has been building up in France, but one of the heaviest blows came last week at a meeting of a Vietnam Nationalist Congress.

The congress adopted a resolution saying that after Vietnam is granted independence, it does not wish to remain in the French Union. Later, apparently under pressure, the congress modified the resolution to read that Vietnam does not wish to remain in the French Union as it is presently set up.

The congress also declined to nominate a panel of men from whom six would be chosen by Bao Dai to conduct negotiations with France on Vietnamese independence.

BUDGET COMING UP

This almost open hostility was too much for many French deputies at a time when French troops are involved in one of the biggest offensive of the war and when the budget with heavy war expenditures is coming up for discussion.

The Laniel government has promised independence for the three states of Indochina—Laos, Cambodia and Vietnam—with the understanding that they will remain linked to France through the French Union.

The note which will be handed to the Vietnamese representative in France tomorrow is expected to ask for a definite answer on whether Bao Dai and the Vietnamese government accept "the French Union as it is now constituted." If the answer should be no or equivocating, the Laniel government may renounce its promise for independence.

Mother Saves 4 From Flames

SWEET HOME, Ore., Oct. 21 (AP)—A young mother ran back into her flaming house three times early today and saved her four children one by one.

She and one child, an infant, were severely burned.

The mother, Mrs. Robert Hand, 26, was hysterical after the rescue and neighbors had trouble piecing the whole story together.

DRAMATIC STORY

But from them and from a sister-in-law, Mrs. George Pitts, this emerged:

Shortly before 1 a.m., while the husband was at work, fire broke out. Mrs. Hand awoke, picked up Lloyd, 4 months, dropped him onto the floor. The door opened but the handle came off and the door slammed shut behind her. She ran across the street, pounded on the door of the Clinton Hockley home, and handed in her baby.

DOOR KICKED IN

While Hockley turned in an alarm, Mrs. Hand ran back to the house. There was no handle to open the door. A man, whose name was not learned, kicked in the door and Mrs. Hand rushed past him into the flames, and ran out again with Johnny, 6. Putting him down, she sped back and came out with Stanley, 5.

Then, scarcely before the gathering group of spectators knew what she was doing, she dashed through the flames to bring out the fourth child, Susan. The girl suffered only singed hair. Mrs. Hand was burned over most of the upper part of her body.

Mental Misfits Said 'Loose' On Highways

CHICAGO, Oct. 21 (AP)—A psychiatrist who analyzes automobile drivers said today that "many" are loose on the roads who are "mental, intellectual and emotional misfits."

Dr. Alan Canty, psychiatrist at the Detroit Traffic Clinic, told

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Oct. 21 (UP)—Officers who arrested John Benson, 32, of Hamilton City, for driving into another car found Benson is completely blind in one eye, has 11/200 vision in the other, receives total blind aid from the state and is provided a "reader" by the federal government so he can attend Chico State College.

the 41st National Safety Congress that "the chronic traffic violator is a social problem child."

CLASSES LISTED

He said many drivers fall into these classes:

1. The day dreamer who is preoccupied with financial woes, marital discord or business worries while driving.
2. The alcoholic who is trying to escape reality.
3. The selfish egocentric who disregards the rights of others.
4. The "world owes me a living" driver who wants to hog the whole road.
5. The "show off" who vents his feeling of inferiority behind the wheel of a car.

NEARLY INSANE

Canty said besides the drivers with mental or emotional complexes there are those who actually are insane or nearly so.

He said a study of nearly 10,000 problem drivers by the Detroit clinic since 1936 turned up about 100 who were commitably insane, 850 who were feeble-minded and about 1,000 former mental hospital patients who were not fully recovered.

$1.20 Pay Floor Asked on U.S. Textile Contracts

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP)—The CIO Textile Workers Union today appealed to Secretary of Labor Mitchell to increase minimum wages to $1.20 an hour for work on government contracts in the woolen and worsted textile industry.

John Chpka, secretary-treasurer of the union, wrote Mitchell that the $1.05 present minimum is "completely outdated" and said the matter of an increase has been pending for two years. He asked an immediate boost.

Mitchell is authorized under the Walsh-Healey Public Contracts Act to set minimum wages for employees working on government contracts.

Russell Hits 90 Pct. Parity Foes

MACON, Oct. 21.—Sen. Richard B. Russell called upon Republican leaders for a concrete legislative program to halt the drop in farm income and preserve the integrity of the soil conservation program.

Speaking to the 15th annual Georgia Farm Bureau Federation meeting here, the senator backed Georgia farmers' demand for a 90 per cent-parity commodity price support program with a promise to fight for it in Congress.

He praised state Farm Bureau leaders, but lashed out at "some national Farm Bureau leaders" who he said oppose 90 per cent support.

Before adjourning, the state group re-elected H. L. Wingate president and adopted resolutions in favor of American participation in the U.N., continued foreign aid to "freedom-loving nations" and a stronger soil conservation program.

Claims Stranger Struck Him at End of Cab Ride

Everett Morris, 47, of a Moores Mill Road, NW, address yesterday received a severe head injury when he was struck by a stranger, police said.

Ptl. R. D. Sims and N. A. Chastain quoted Morris as saying he rode in a taxicab to a parking lot at 687 Memorial Dr., SE. When he got out of the cab, Morris said a man stepped out of a pickup truck, struck him and then re-entered the truck and drove away.

Morris and the taxi driver, Leo Acree, said they had never seen the assailant before.

Parents' Role in War On Kidnapers Stressed

Atlanta's school superintendent and police chief last night voiced agreement with FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover that parental responsibility is the major factor in combating kidnaping and child molestation.

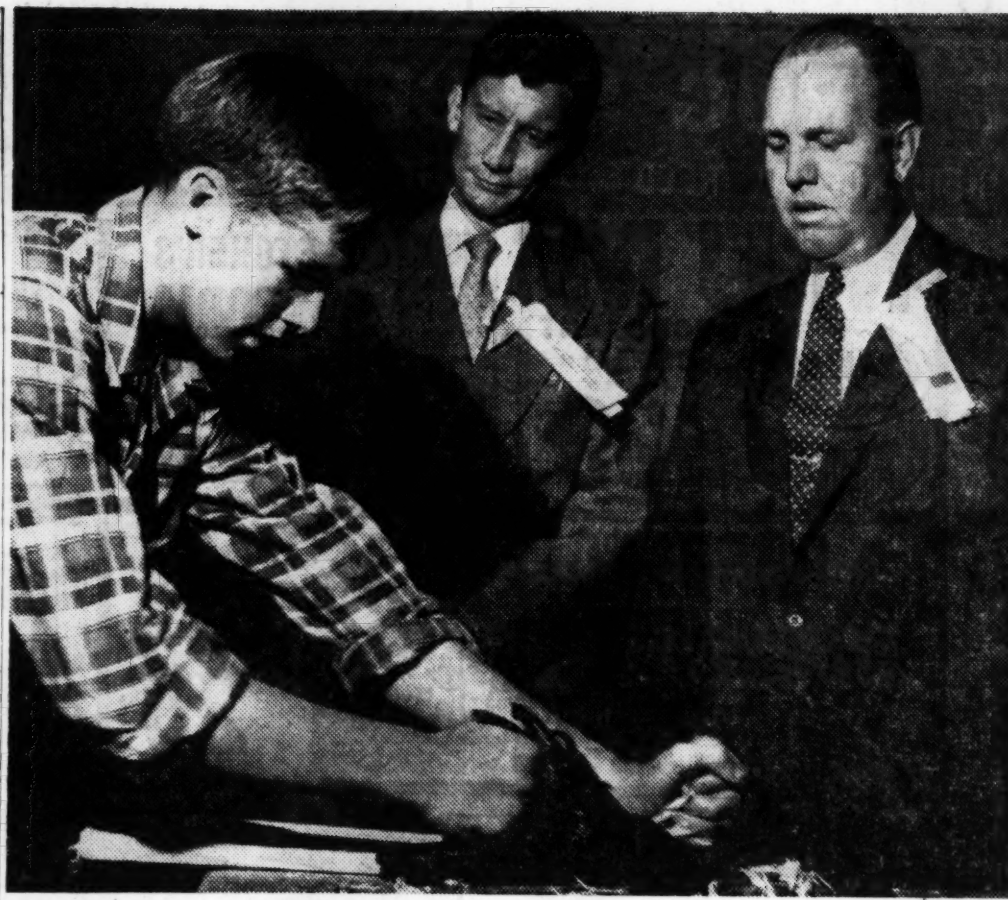

Supt. Ira Jarrell and Chief Herbert Jenkins, appearing on the WSB-TV program "Press Gallery," emphasized that it is the duty of parents to cooperate with school officials and police by teaching their children to be alert against possible offenders.

STRESS THESE RULES

They cited the following as good rules for school children to follow:

1. Go to and from school in groups.
 2. Avoid taking shortcuts, particularly routes which traverse wooded or isolated areas.
 3. Don't accept rides or stop to talk with strangers.
- Miss Jarrell said principals and teachers in the Atlanta school system are instructed not to release children to persons unknown to them.

3d Army Sends 1,600 AWOLs To Far East Duty

Approximately 1,600 Third Army soldiers who went "absent without leave" have been assigned to immediate duty in the Far East since Feb. 1, officials announced yesterday.

Some 550 of these were from installations in Georgia, the officials said.

The officials said the Army policy of sending AWOLs overseas, along with other anti-desertion measures, has reduced Third Army's AWOL and desertion rates by more than 30 per cent since February.

More than 23 per cent of the national total of 6,900 AWOLs sent to the Far East were from Third Army, the figures showed.

Forum Airlines Income Tax Points

Three tax experts last night discussed income taxes, dwelling house in six months was "sudden enough" to be natural loss. In long upon the subject of deductions and what Uncle Sam smiles upon—and frowns upon.

Appearing at the fourth session of the Lawyer's Forum sponsored jointly by the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs and the Georgia Bar Association, John E. Simpson and Robert L. Foreman Jr., Atlanta attorneys, talked about Form 1040—that troublesome piece of paper due every March 15. The discussion was moderated by Robert Quillan, former president of the Atlanta Lawyers' Club.

Simpson first discussed what must be listed as income and how to determine one's gross income and taxes. Then Foreman took over to tell the audience how to get some of it back.

Among lesser known deductibles were tooth paste and tooth brush (medical expenses), cost of getting teeth cleaned (also medical expenses), health and accident insurance premiums, automobile damage when not incurred through negligence, and termite destruction when it only takes six months.

The lawyers pointed out that courts recently ruled that termite destruction which ruined a

Georgia Forest Fire Peril Mounts With Second Month Without Rain

By BILL ALLEN

Smoky the Bear is trembling in his boots in Georgia along with his helpers, the U.S. Forestry Service and State Forestry Director Guyton DeLoach.

The reason: North Georgia is entering its second month without rain, and unseasonably hot days with drying winds have brought about a near-critical woods-fire threat in the area.

As a result, hunting seasons may be suspended in the mountains. According to weatherman Dave Miller the last rain in a measurable amount fell Sept. 26.

DRY WINDS

Since then, hot, dry winds have fanned the woods north of Atlanta, and the leaves have died on the trees. Mostly, the federal and state forestry officials are hoping for a wood-wetting rain before a hard frost dries out more greenery.

Last year, in Northeast Georgia within three days, 75,000 acres were destroyed by fire, including 21 homes, nine barns, a sawmill, a lot of livestock, two shops and a warehouse.

That was also in October, and then, as now, no leaves had fallen, but were dead and dry on the trees. This, according to DeLoach, makes for swifter spreading, more dangerous fires.

Already in Tennessee and North Carolina where millions of dollars in timberland burned last year, hunting seasons have been suspended, according to State Game and Fish Director Fulton Lovell of Georgia.

MAYBE THE SAME

"We may have to do the same thing in Georgia if we don't get rain in a good amount before the first of November, when the deer season opens, he said.

Already in Tennessee, one serious fire has destroyed several thousand acres of national forest. It could happen in Georgia tomorrow, according to state and federal officials.

The cure, of course, is in Smokey

the Bear's prevention commands:

Don't burn off the woods, or attempt to burn off a field right now. It is poor land conservation practice as well as being as dangerous as Russian roulette.

Burn trash in a hole or metal drum or furnace and guard it every minute. Put out that cigarette inside the car—they have ashtrays. Wet the campfire until it's out. Cover it with dirt and wet it again. And break every match you use in half before throwing it down.

"Only you can prevent forest fires," Smokey says. And Forest Director DeLoach says: "We are sitting on a keg of dynamite that one careless person can explode. Surely nobody wants that to happen!"

'Red' Feather Reports Third Of Chest Goal

"Red" Feather has good news for Atlantans today:

The 1953 Community Chest campaign has passed the one-third mark on the way to a $1,724,053 goal.

"Red," friendly imp personifying Community Chest spirit and the 36 Red Feather agencies, got the word from Tri-Cities and South Fulton divisions, which yesterday reported $32,593, or 50 per cent of their individual quotas.

The new report ups the Chest total to $625,356, or 36.3 per cent of the overall goal. And "Red" Feather urges Chest volunteer workers and generous Atlantans: "Keep up the good work. Let's go over the top this year!"

Kollock, Belcher Vows Said

At a ceremony solemnized Wednesday evening at the Mikell Memorial Chapel of the Cathedral of St. Philip, Miss Mary Louise Kollock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Jones Kollock, became the bride of Clarence Edward Belcher.

Dean Alfred Hardman officiated in the presence of the two families and a few close friends of the bride and groom.

Mr. Kollock gave his daughter in marriage. She wore the white satin wedding gown of her sister, Mrs. Guyton McCall, who served as her matron of honor.

Ushering were Guyton McCall and Phillip Richards of Atlanta. Thomas Evans of Atlanta was best man for Mr. Belcher, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Belcher.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Kollock entertained at a small reception in the church parlors.

Mr. Belcher and his bride left for a Florida honeymoon. Upon their return they will reside in an Atlanta apartment.

UDC Honors Three State Club Women

AUGUSTA, Oct. 21—Three veteran Georgia club women were singled out for honors yesterday at the annual convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy meeting at the Bon Air Hotel.

Mrs. Forrest Kibler, Atlanta; Mrs. D. B. Gray, College Park, and Mrs. Lucy Garnett Overstreet, Sylvania, UDC members with more than 40 years' service each, were given merit citations by Mrs. C. Robert Walker, Griffin, state president.

Educational awards were presented at a morning session by Mrs. W. B. Childs, Macon.

Winning chapters were: Charlotte Carson Chapter, Tifton, Fraser vase; Atlanta Chapter No. 18, Zora Beall trophy, and Martha McLeod Chapter, Abbeville, Bertha Allen Harris trophy.

Lt. Sydney Richard Washington Jr. of Atlanta was awarded the first Georgia UDC military cross given to a veteran of the Korean conflict. Mrs. S. C. Moon, Gainesville, made the presentation. Ten other crosses were given to Confederate descended veterans of World War I and II.

An elaborate tea was held this afternoon in the ante-bellum Southern colonial mansion of Mrs. A. L. Franklin on Walton Way. Augusta UDC members were hostesses.

Pigskin Steady Diet Of Grid Coaches Wives

By BETTY CARROLLTON
Constitution Staff Writer

ATHENS, Oct. 21—Pigskin is the steady diet of a group of attractive Athens homemakers.

Kickoff time for the University of Georgia's Bulldogs is the signal for coaches wives to take a tight grip on their good-luck charms and a firmer hold on their nerves.

"It's fun but nerve-racking," said Mrs. James Wallace Butts, wife of the dean of Southeastern Conference coaches, summing up her role as the power behind the throne of the Bulldog mentor.

"Wally says he settles down after the first few minutes of the game," Mrs. Butts continued, "but I don't. The tension lets up for me only after the final whistle."

Sports have been a part of the everyday life of Mrs. Butts, the former Winifred Faye Taylor of Milledgeville, since she was in her teens. She met her husband when she was sixteen and cheered him as a standout player on the gridiron, basketball court and baseball diamond before their marriage in 1929.

According to Mrs. Butts, Wally is not troubled by a lack of appetite.

"LIVES TO EAT"

"He lives to eat," she declared smilingly, "and his favorite dishes are turnip greens and snapbeans."

Mrs. Butts says she is not superstitious. She relies on the expert coaching of her husband and his assistants and the capable playing of squad members rather than good-luck charms but she admits that Wally carries a couple of buckeyes as an added precaution.

Mrs. Forrest "Spec" Towns, attractive wife of the assistant coach, used to wear a mustard seed to insure the Bulldogs victory. After the recent game at College Park, Md., however she became leery of its power. The mustard seed was not part of her accessories for the Georgia-LSU tilt Saturday.

Petite Mrs. Quinton Lumpkin, wife of the line coach and Freshman Athletic Director, is another who is wary of charms and potions, although friends offer new "lucky" ideas each week for a Georgia victory.

BRITISH HEADMISTRESS CHECKS YANKEE TEXT
L-R: Glenday, Katharine Bleckley of English Speaking Union

Briton Finds No Rioting In Classroom

By JEAN ROONEY

A British school marm who "rather expected a riot in American classrooms" is pleasantly surprised.

She is Miss Nonita Glenday, head mistress of a private girls' school in Bristol, England, currently in Atlanta as part of a tour of American educational institutions.

"I haven't seen bad discipline in a single American classroom," the brisk school marm said yesterday, from a month's look-see into American schools from Boston down the East coast.

She is traveling on a scholarship from the American division of the English Speaking Union.

"VERY ALERT"

"Very alert, forthright, no inhibitions" are her impressions of American students.

The Oxford-educated visitor reported her girls study more Latin or Greek than American teen-agers.

"But they play quite proper cricket," the tweed-suited educator assured.

America's huge public schools and speed-reading courses surprise her.

British schools have picked up the Yankee yen for I.Q. tests, Miss Glenday said.

"We even give them to our five-year-olds," she reported.

"YANKEE-PACED"

Her "Yankee-paced" Atlanta schedule will include an address at Westminster Schools at 10 a.m. today; a dinner speech to Delta Kappa Gamma Society, 6:30 p.m. tonight, at the Atlanta Woman's Club.

At 7:45 p.m. this evening she will address the Atlanta chapter, American Association of University Women, at the home of Mrs. Robert Mell, 1278 Oakdale Rd., NE.

Tomorrow she will speak at Agnes Scott College at 10:20 a.m. She will talk to the Atlanta English Club at 12:30 p.m. Saturday.

Atlanta school official Paul Farmer toured Miss Glenday through city schools yesterday.

Slow Loss Of Weight Is Normal

By IDA JEAN KAIN

On a low calorie diet many overweights lose with pleasing promptness, perhaps five pounds the first week and four the second.

Then they stop losing. The third week of the diet no weight is lost—not even a half-pound. And perhaps the fourth week they lose only one pound.

NORMAL PROGRESS

Hold on . . . that progress is quite normal. Even if you do lose rapidly at the beginning of a diet, you cannot expect to continue to lose at that brisk clip. For after the soft watery fat has been lost, you get down to the hard dry fat, and the rate loss will inevitably be slower.

What happens is this: The fast initial weight loss is partly due to the release of water from the tissues, along with some fat loss. To lose one pound of body fat it is necessary to burn 3,500 stored calories.

DIFFERENCE IN WATER

The difference is in water. And since stored water weighs more than fat, when released from the tissues the report on the scales is good news for the dieter.

As a rule, the more overweight you are, the more you can expect to lose at the beginning of the diet—5 to 7 pounds the first week is not unusual.

A fast initial weight loss is just the opposite of water retention. Some overweights fail to lose a single pound the first week or so on a low calorie diet. In fact, the scales may show a gain. With these dieters, as fat is lost, water is stored in the tissues, and not until the water balance readjusts will the fat lost be registered on the scales. However, when the water is finally released, the pointer will plunge with seeming suddenness.

The point to keep in mind is that water balance always adjusts and, in the long run, if you refuse to be discouraged and stick to the diet, you'll lose the right amount.

FAMED CHOREOGRAPHER LEAVES FOR ATLANTA LUNCHEON WITH STARS
Lydia Franklin (Left), Agnes de Mille and Gemze de Lappe, Here for Concert

DeMille Lingers in City This Time

By DOTTY LUNDY

The first time Agnes de Mille came to Atlanta she stayed 15 minutes. "That was during World War II," the Broadway choreographer for "Brigadoon" and "Oklahoma" explained. "My fiancé, an Army Air Corps officer, was stationed in the South. He had written that he had made reservations for me at a certain hotel and since all our calls were relayed through Atlanta, I got the idea he wanted me to meet him here. When I told the cab driver where to go, his expression convinced me I had the wrong city and state!"

ARRIVES FROM CLEMSON

Miss De Mille arrived here yesterday from Clemson, S. C., for the first performance of the All Star Concert series last night at the Municipal Auditorium. Today she boards the company's bus again for Rock Hill, S. C.

In private life, Miss De Mille lives in New York with her husband, Walter Prude, a concert manager, and son Johnathon. 7. "We didn't name him after anyone," she declared. "I don't believe in trying to make a child a small replica of a relative." Besides Mother Agnes, Johnathon's famous forebears include great-uncle Cecil B. de Mille, the movie producer, and grandfather William de Mille, the playwright. "Right now Johnathon wants to be a space cadet," laughs his mother.

The dancer, who has left the imprint of her slippers on stages all over the world, writes on any surface that "can take the imprint of a pencil." Her recent best selling autobiography, "Dance to the Piper," was six years in the making. I did it late at night and on scratch paper in drug stores, never letting my husband know until the manuscript was accepted by the publisher. But it's just a masterpiece of deletion," she said modestly. "Edward Weeks, of the Atlantic edited it for me."

In the book Miss De Mille recounts how she was fired with fervor for the dance by Pavlova, yet her young duckling lines refused to conform. Most of her ballet exercises were done on her mother's towel rack, to the dismay of her father. Making her debut in the late 20's, Miss De Mille charmed audiences, but not producers, for 15 lean years in Europe and America. Then she scored an immediate success as choreographer for a Russian ballet troupe using a Western idiom.

Miss De Mille joins her dance theater intermittently on its six months' nationwide tour between rehearsals of Sigmund Romberg's "Girl in Pink Tights."

WHEN TO START?

Asked when she thought a child should learn ballet, she replied "If you mean the classical form, not under eight. Many children are forced upon their poor little toes before they know why they're up there. Some know the formalized movement" before they know how to run. But I'd recommend folk dance forms to teach posture and coordination for any child.

"Believe me, a dancer's life is costly, short and violent," she went on. "Girls often ask me if they should go to college or devote all their time to the dance. There's only one answer. I tell them to choose one or the other." Yet Miss De Mille's advice belies her own career, for she was graduated from the University of California cum laude besides having received numerous honorary degrees.

Film Star's Success Reflects Glory on Atlanta State AAUW To Open Macon Meet

By ANNIE LOU HARDY
Atlanta shines by reflected glory in the success of a bright, new star in the film firmament, Tom Mattox of Hollywood. Tom, you see, is married to pretty Martha Sadler of Atlanta.

Until June of last year, the Mattoxes lived in Meridian, Miss., where Tom had joined the Little Theater after he got out of the Army. Realizing, however, that to hit the "big time" he should be nearer the center of things, he pulled up stakes without a qualm and moved his family to California—927 Fisk St., Pacific Palisades, to be exact.

In addition to Martha, the family includes a seven-year-old daughter, Sharon, sons Billy Michael and Dusty, who are five and three, and a boxer, Marfy.

CRASHED THE PRESS

Hardly had Tom landed on California soil than his youthful good looks crashed the press with force — and this luck still continues. In the October issue of a fan magazine, he occupies the lead in Alysce Canfield's "Hollywood Showcase." And he also is featured in a page one story with a two-column picture in a recent issue of The Santa Monica Independent.

"Tom is a very personable young man and extremely handsome, but it was his quiet modesty that impressed me," writes Miss Canfield. "He has an air of authority. He knows what he wants and he knows how to go about getting it."

A PLACE IN THE SUN
Mr. and Mrs. Tom Mattox

Tom was graduated from Mississippi University where, incidentally, he acquired a soft Southern drawl. One of his first acts on reaching California was to hire a diction coach to help him overcome his accent, thereby making him eligible for a greater choice of roles.

JUVENILE LEADS

In Meridian Tom played juvenile leads in such hits as "Command Decision," "John Loves Mary," "Dear Ruth," and "The Man Who Came to Dinner." But the role he liked best was Mortimer in "Arsenic and Old Lace."

Martha, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Sadler of Darlington Apartments, admits that her husband's strong confidence has given her courage when often it seemed the actor's road might be a little too long and rocky.

Much of that road is behind him now. Tom is in great demand with Little Theaters all over California and with talent scouts taking definite notice of his warm personality and his prepossessing appearance, he seems destined for a place in Hollywood's bright sun.

State AAUW To Open Macon Meet

DAILY GUIDE—This is the day for the brilliant minds to give out with original ideas. People should be wide-awake today, particularly early in the morning. This is a good day for getting ideas over to the public, and for communication and transportation systems. This should be an exciting time for those born in the middle of July, March and November. This is the beginning of a change for those born during the last week of October and the first three weeks of November. Some of these people will immediately feel a difference in their outlook and even in their circumstances. Others who will begin to notice a new trend bringing gradual changes are those born during the last week of April, July, and January.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY, LIBRA! Your birthday falls in between Libra and Scorpio so you may feel some reaction to this full moon and the heavy aspect changes. During December you should make decisions and take action. Get started on a new project or renew your drive towards goals already established. Financial affairs will need some attention now. Give serious thought to security and a steady income. After February you can expect smoother going if you take advantage of opportunities through social or educational contacts. After May these change to business opportunities for promotion and prestige.

This World 'Too Beautiful'

HOLLY CREEK—Covetousness is a sin and I know it as well as anybody. Just because the Bible doesn't specify "thy brother's mountain cabin with creek across the yard," along with thy brother's ox and ass and maid servant and man servant is no sign that you're to go around coveting mountain cabins.

It's a sin and, more than that, it's a sin I committed, sitting in the front yard leaning against a red oak tree with a piece of fried chicken in my hand and my children whooping and hollering up and down Holly Creek.

We came to admire the autumn leaves and we stayed to covet a way of life.

That's the way these North Georgia mountains do you. If you could just be satisfied to look at the place—and not want to clutch it all, leaves and sky, cabin and earth and rocky little stream, to your heart and own it forevermore. . . .

As Miss Millay said in her poem: "Lord, I do fear Thou hast made the world too beautiful this year."

People keep asking if the leaves are at their best and I keep bobbing my head enthusiastically. In fact, I would have given them the same answer at any point between now and last spring when I could have sworn those tiny, pale green uncurling little buds were at their absolute "best."

Anyhow, taking off from Ellijay in the direction of Conasauga Lake seems to me to be infallible. You can't fail to get hummingbird drunk on beauty. And Jim Davidson of the Cleveland Courier has copied a little list of hardwood trees to help you identify the particular splash of color that you're admiring.

Of course, it's not going to absolutely tell you the difference between a shad bush and a silver maple, but if you happen to know that much you can get pretty far knowing what trees come in what general colors.

For instance: American elm, yellow; ash, yellow to dark purple; basswood, yellow; beech, clear yellow; box elder, bright yellow; hawthorn, brilliant colors and fruit; hazelnut, brownish yellow; madroa, clear yellow, red berries; mountain maple, yellow and scarlet; poplar, yellow and golden; red maple, scarlet and orange; red oak, dark red; scarlet oak, brilliant scarlet; shad bush, bright clear yellow; sugar maple, yellow to orange and scarlet; silver maple, pale yellow; striped maple, light yellow; sumac, brilliant red; tupelo, flaming scarlet; white oak, deep red to orange brown; willows, light yellow; witch hazel, yellow orange, rarely purple.

The thing about the cabin and the stream is that they seem to nestle so nicely into this storm, this hurricane of color.

If I lived here, you think, I'd be encamped in beauty.

So you sit under a tree and watch the tourists going by, climbing the old CCC road to the lake, the highest in the state. You listen to a squirrel chattering away back toward Tater Patch mountain and the little stream edging its way noisily over and around rocks. And after a bit the illusion is complete. You own all you see.

Which is, come to think about it, a wondrous thing for a friend to give you when he lends you, for a day's picnicking, his little mountain place.

Miss Wengrow Is Married

Miss Marian Kay Wengrow was married to Donald Irving Kessler at an afternoon ceremony solemnized at the Wade Hampton Hotel in Columbia, S. C. Rabbi David Karesh and Rabbi Morton L. Gordon officiated and the latter gave the bridal pair the seven blessings.

Morris Wengrow gave his daughter in marriage, and the bridegroom's father, Max N. Kessler of Atlanta, was his best man.

Miss Helaine Kaufman kept the bride's book, and Joe Goldman acted as toastmaster at the dinner given by the bride's parents after the ceremony.

After their wedding trip the couple will reside at 2811 1/2 Royal St., Augusta.

Mrs. Kessler attended the University of South Carolina, and prior to her marriage she was a staff member of Radio Station WUSC and the Radio Players Club.

The bridegroom attended the University of Georgia before entering the Armed Forces. While serving in Korea he was traffic manager of Radio Station Kilroy in Taegu. He is now connected with Radio Station WJBF in Augusta.

Keep Oven Heat Low If you want to enjoy more servings per pound from your roasts. And to make sure your meat has a beautiful brown, crackly crust, here's my tip—brush the meat with Kitchen Bouquet or Kitchen Bouquet Browning Glaze before cooking. By using this Kitchen Bouquet way of low temperature cooking, your meat not only shrinks less and browns perfectly but also turns out juicy and tender. Vitamins and meat-money aren't wasted, either.

Use Kitchen Bouquet to give hamburgers, steaks, chops that luscious brown charcoal broiled look, too. Yes—it's the same fine product that helps make your gravy brown and delicious . . . see directions in every Kitchen Bouquet package.

Why Sit And Suffer with a headache or the pain of neuritis or neuralgia? Anacin® tablets are so easy to get at any drug store, so easy to take, and give such speedy, long-lasting relief from pain the way physicians and dentists recommend!

Anacin, you see, is like a doctor's prescription; that is, Anacin contains not just one but a combination of medically proven, active ingredients. You've already received Anacin tablets from your own physician or dentist and know its quick effectiveness? Then you need no urging from me to keep economy bottles of 50 and 100 handy for home use. Or to get, for hand or traveling bags or office—those convenient flat tins of 12 and 30 Anacin tablets.

For a Sweetheart of a Figure

Marcia WinnHis First Birthday Party
A Treat; Rest Are Boring

Are there any mothers of children over the age of 6 who would like to join a movement to abolish birthday parties?

Under the age of 6 the birthday party is an admirable institution. Every child is entitled to have at least one and to attend at least four.

By that time he will have picked up as many colds as possible and as many of the childhood diseases as have had a recent play in his neighborhood, will have a good conception of how every birthday child acts on his birthday, which is horrible.

IDEAL AGE

The ideal age for this single party is 4. Under 4 the guests variously wet, howl, and want to take home the presents they bring.

Over 4 the guests prefer strawberry ice cream or vanilla to whatever kind the party of-fats, fight over who snatched whose favor, and squabble over turns for pinning the tail on the donkey.

At 4 everyone is sweet and dreamy. Birthday parties are exciting adventures. All ice-cream and cake is delicious. Everyone is docile. Everyone gets to play with the gifts, and everyone, because the hostess mother sees to it, actually gets home with his or her favor.

But by the time the average child is 6, he has birthdayed too often. He has seen it all before. For the first 10 minutes the guests and even the birthday child are in a state described aptly as "nasty nice." Then they fight, they form cliques, they candidly say to one another, "Go away. I don't like you."

They don't want to play any games, or they want to play any game other than the games planned for their jolly two hours and they are extremely particular about food. If you have milk, they want pop. If you have pop, they want lemonade or milk. Some, imagine it, even want water. Some don't want anything. They would rather be home in blue jeans and here they are dressed to the gills.

CALL TO ACTION

If you have a dozen 6 or 7 year olds, and 12 nowadays is a small group inasmuch as the entire first or second grade must be included, you have 12 tastes, inclinations, and minds to cope with, and all of these are definite.

To top it off, the little girls no longer care to play with the little boys, and vice versa, yet each sex is hurt if not invited.

In short, the child of 6 or 7 who has been attending these free-for-alls since 3 or 4 is b-o-r-e-d. Ask him when he comes home and he'll say so.

Give every child a birthday party. Make it his first and last. Then it will be a treat.

Eichelberger U.N. Address Set Tuesday

Clark M. Eichelberger, director of the American Association for the United Nations, Inc., will speak Tuesday at the Atlanta president's council dinner as part of the week-long United Nations celebration.

The dinner will be held at 7 p.m. at the Atlanta Woman's Club.

Eichelberger has been a student of international relations since World War I in which he served. He has served as a consultant to the State department and to the U.S. delegation at the San Francisco Conference in 1945.

Arnall Sees GOP Defeat On Finances

ADEL, Oct. 21 (AP)—Former Gov. Ellis Arnall foresees Republican financial policies as bringing political disaster to the GOP and "disloyal Democrats" alike.

In a speech before the Lions Club here yesterday, Arnall said: "The next state political contest may well be based on the issue of loyalty to the Democratic Party and its candidates. Economic recession can put the blight on the Republicans and the disloyal Democrats alike. The recent congressional result in Wisconsin (in which a Democrat won) is a straw in the wind of the developing political trend toward the Democrats."

The former governor charged that "some four Georgia politicians betrayed the Democratic Party" in the Stevenson-Eisenhower presidential campaign and predicted for them "a day of reckoning."

He added that he always had been a loyal Democrat and had no apology for his active support of Roosevelt, Truman, Stevenson and the party.

He continued: "I am happy that the state administration has arranged for Stevenson to address the Georgia General Assembly and is entertaining him here. That is much better than sponsoring and introducing the Republican candidate for president a short year ago."

Mediation Office Here To Serve 4 More States

The jurisdiction of the Atlanta regional office of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service has been increased from five to nine states, Regional Director William S. Pierce announced yesterday.

Pierce said Louisiana, North and South Carolina and Virginia have been added to the Atlanta region which previously included Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee.

The change resulted from a national reorganization which reduced the labor mediation agency's field offices from 12 to eight. Washington officials said the change will save $72,000 this year and allow the service to stay within its budget.

Pierce said the change is not expected to affect materially the Atlanta office's operation.

Mighty Hearty Eating, Thrasher Says

State Auditor B. E. Thrasher Jr. thinks that Director Garland Byrd and some members of the Georgia Citizens Council are unusually hearty eaters.

He commented yesterday in his audit of the agency for the year ended June 30:

"In some instances amounts of $8 to $11 per day for food were charged to state expense accounts by the director and some council members, which appear to be excessive rates."

The audit shows that the council spent $28,696 last year. Of that amount, $22,083 was for personal services including the $6,600 salary of Director Byrd and $2,576 for travel expenses.

$9 Million Bridge Bond Bids Open Oct. 29

Bids on the first $9,750,000 of Supreme Court opinion on validity of the bonds and a stronger bond market all point to an interest rate of around three per cent or less.

The authority, of which State Highway Board Chairman Jim L. Gillis is chairman, will receive bids on construction of its first 11 bridge projects on Nov. 6.

The authority was created by the 1952 Legislature to build new bridges in the state highway system and lease them to the Highway department. The authority can issue up to 40 million dollars of revenue bonds to build new bridges.

Doughnut Hole Opened
By Alert Maine Lad

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP)—Possibly it never occurred to you that there could be any controversy on this subject:

Who invented the hole in the doughnut, and when and where did he do it?

"There is, though," said the man across the table. "There are at least three versions. But the fellow I represent has the only true one, and, thanks to Aunt Bessie, he can prove it."

The man across the table was Richard H. Cowles, a Burlington, Vt., attorney who was in town to bring the good word to a meeting of the Maine Society. The good word for these former residents of Maine was that the hole in the doughnut not only was invented by a Maine man but he actually was in Maine when he did it.

VOUCHED BY VERMONT

Cowles was here as representative of red "Davey" Crockett, who is a Vermont Boy Scout executive when he isn't doughnutting. Crockett was supposed to come here to address the Maine Society, but his wife was ill, so he sent his attorney.

According to Cowles, Crockett is a descendant of Capt. Hanson Crockett Gregory. "On both his mother's and his father's side," Cowles said, "I won't bother to go into details, but he says he can prove it."

Anyway, Cowles said, it was Hanson Crockett Gregory who in 1847, at the precocious age of 15, invented the doughnut.

"The story is," Cowles said, "that he was watching his mother cook fry cakes, and she was having trouble getting them done in the middle. So the boy poked a hole in one, and there was the doughnut."

And the rival theories?

"Nothing to them," said Cowles cheerfully. "One is by a Massachusetts man who claims it was invented by an Indian. The Indian is supposed to have shot an arrow at a white girl who was cooking. Hit the dough instead. Fantastic."

PIPSQUEAK, INDEED

The other theory is advanced by the captain's own daughter, Mrs. Isabel Gregory Bailey. She says the captain invented the doughnut all right, but that he was at sea at the time. He did it by ramming a piece of dough over the spoke of the wheel.

"Doesn't sound reasonable to me," Cowles said. "And Aunt Bessie, who lived in the captain's house, backs up Davey's story in her own handwriting. I'm sure the little pipsqueak I represent has the right story."

"Sure, I can call him that because we're both in scouting. Do you realize that you're talking to the most experienced Cubmaster in the world. I've been at it 14 years. I'm sure I'm the most experienced because it isn't everybody who could stand it that long."

And then he tipped off his real feeling with: "Oh, it's a great thing."

Has any Boy Scout of his own?

"No," Cowles said, "we have only one child, a girl."

But did he like doughnuts?

"No," he said, "can't eat 'em. I'm a diabetic."

Hiroshima Goal
Fright, Red Says

LONDON, Oct. 21 (AP)—A Russian radio commentator said today the only reason the United States dropped the world's first atom bomb on Hiroshima, Japan, was to frighten the Soviet Union.

The commentator, identified only as "Kirilin," declared the bomb had no effect on the war with Japan and the Allied victory actually was won by Soviet troops.

Army Sets Policy

On Christmas Passes

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP)—The Army announced today that it will suspend all but basic training for draftees from Dec. 21 to Jan. 4 to let military personnel go home for Christmas and New Year's Day.

The Air Force, Navy and Marine Corps said they will follow a similar policy.

Texans Give McCarthy
$6,000 Car

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP)—Sen. and Mrs. Joseph R. McCarthy received a wedding present today from a group of "patriotic Texans." It was a black, air-conditioned Cadillac coupe.

With the automobile McCarthy got a framed copy of a newspaper article about Texas. On the article was an inscription by Gov. Allen Shivers which said: "Joe McCarthy—a real American—is now officially a Texan."

Eugene M. Biggers, Allenby, Texas, rancher who made the presentation on the Capitol Plaza, told McCarthy: "We Texans approve the work you are doing, the methods you are employing and the results you are getting."

Biggers said some 2,000 "patriotic Texas citizens contributed $6,000 to buy the car. They also bought an insurance policy for it."

"This Cadillac truly represents the love and high affection in which you are held," Biggers told the McCarthy's. "Millions of true Americans pray that each of you be granted a long, a useful and a happy life."

Leyte Damage Estimated at $620,000

BOSTON, Oct. 21 (INS)—Property damage to the aircraft carrier Leyte on which 36 men were killed in an explosion and fire last Friday today was estimated at $620,000.

Cmdr. Clarence C. Wright of the Boston Naval Shipyard, where the Leyte was undergoing alterations to fit her out as a submarine "hunter-killer" gave the estimate to the Naval Board of Inquiry seeking to fix cause of the disaster. Cmdr. Wright estimated $145,000 for labor costs, $150,000 for other overhead costs; $125,000 for repair material, and $200,000 to build another catapult.

Baptists Pick O'Brien as Moderator

The Rev. Robert L. O'Brien, pastor of Capitol Avenue Baptist Church, was elected moderator of the Atlanta Baptist Association for the coming year at the closing session of the association's annual meeting Wednesday at Sharon Baptist Church. He succeeds Dr. E. B. Shivers, pastor of Inman Park Church.

Other officers elected were Judge Frank Hooper of Second-Ponce de Leon Church, vice-moderator; and Milton Holcombe, clerk-treasurer. An auditor will be named later by the association's executive committee.

Dr. George Connell, president of Mercer University, told the association that to maintain Mercer's educational standards the school must have more money. He said the school would always remain true to the Baptist denomination, but that if church funds continue to be inadequate, private funds must be accepted.

The association voted to hold next year's meeting at Hapeville Church Oct. 19 and at Woodland Hills Church Oct. 20. Dr. Norman Shands, pastor of West End Church, will be the preacher.

Garbage Pickups Face Cut

Garbage collections in Atlanta may be curtailed next year unless additional money is made available to meet added expense, Sanitary Engineer Stafford Graydon said yesterday.

Graydon said he will place the impending "crisis" in his division before the City Council's Sanitary Committee at a special meeting at 2 p.m. today.

He will ask the committee, headed by Wayne Blanchard, to back a 1954 budget of $2,750,000, the largest in history.

Graydon has filed a request for nine additional crews at a cost of $103,000 and asked for $200,000 worth of new equipment. The division received $180,000 for new equipment in 1952.

"We have attempted to provide two garbage collections weekly for residential areas," he said "but unless we get more money we will have to reduce the frequency of collections."

Human hearing usually begins to be less acute shortly after the age of 20.

Sheds Jap Wife He Says Gunned for Him

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 21 (AP)—A Korean War veteran was granted a divorce from his Japanese bride today after testifying she refused to cook or wash and once threatened him with a double-barreled shotgun.

Raymond F. Smith, 20, charged cruelty in his suit against Mrs. Sumiko Yoshida Smith, 27, who he met and married at Hokkaido, Japan, where he was recovering from war wounds in 1951.

Court Backs Widow's Award

The Georgia Court of Appeals yesterday upheld a workmen's compensation award for a saw filer, fatally injured while acting as union steward on a construction job.

W. B. Landers of Rome, an employee of the Standard Construction Co., was killed Nov. 17, 1952 at the Georgia Power Company's Hammond plant.

Landers was checking union carpenters on the job at the time of his injury. A Workmen's Compensation Board examiner made an award to the widow, which was upheld by the Floyd Superior Court.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION, Thursday, Oct. 22, 1953 • 29

union membership and payment of dues.

Although engaged in checking carpenters when he suffered the fatal injury, the court said his death resulted in injuries rising out of and in the course of his employment.

It is estimated that about 1.5 billion pounds of detergents are manufactured in the United States for in a year.

Dr. Wood Heads Mediterranean Vets

Dr. Hugh Wood of Atlanta was elected vice president of the Constantinian Society at the society's eighth annual assembly in Cooperstown, N. Y., yesterday.

Membership is limited to doctors who served in the Mediterranean theater during World War II.

Many Infections Make Up a Cold

Is the common cold a single disease or a hodgepodge of many respiratory infections? Most physicians agree to the latter, yet find it expedient to include the variety of disturbances in one category. This may shed light on the reason why there are so many causes of and so many treatments for what appears to be a single disease.

Some persons are extremely susceptible to colds and develop the "sniffles" at the drop of a hat. They can trace the condition to a favorite niece who stayed for tea and spent most of the time blowing her nose; or to the woman who was doing the same thing while standing behind them waiting to be checked out at the super market.

Others never are bothered along this line unless exposed to cold, wet or overfatigue after a hard weekend. In these individuals, resistance plays a role and when the bars are lowered the germs have a heyday.

Allergy also enters the picture, particularly among those who encounter sore throat, sinus trouble, or bronchitis at certain times of the year or upon entering old, musty buildings. Even the causative organisms vary considerably. It is generally agreed that the virus is responsible initially but after the third day bacteria such as staphylococci or streptococci take over and lead to complications like sinus or ear infection or spread of the cold into the chest.

All this explains the oft heard medical statement, "Many causes may provoke symptoms that are labeled 'common cold.'"

Because everyone develops a cold under different circumstances, it is little wonder that pet remedies are a dime a dozen. It also explains why your favorite may not help another and vice versa and why your home cure seemed to work better the previous time.

A Rhyme a Day

"Access to world markets that provide all the natural ingredients for cosmetics, plus skills and machinery undreamed of by the ancients, have given the United States leadership in a field once dominated by Europeans."—Trade note.

It's a well-known fact, as the years go by . . . the wrinkles come and the skin gets dry . . . but cosmetics say that's absurd . . . and the signs of age can be long deferred.

So . . . to live with a woman, and live in peace . . . you got to get used to that facial grease . . . to the jars of goo on the bathroom shelves . . . and the time they spend to improve themselves.

The evening comes and her prayers are said . . . and she greases herself when she goes to bed . . . so well slicked up with her oils and creams . . . that she slides right into the sea of dreams.

Well, that's about all, I suppose I'm done . . . and we'll finish this up with a feeble pun . . . as we say in Brooklyn, "the goat who's wise . . . is oily to bed and oily to rise."

Survey Gobbles Film

CANBERRA — Royal Australian Air Force fliers have completed an aerial-photography survey of 129,000 square miles of Australian territory. A third of a ton of film was used in recording the area for mapping authorities. The photographs were taken at an altitude of nearly 4½ miles.

The bidding:
South 1 no trump West Pass North 3 no trump East Pass

Opening lead: Six of hearts. East appeared to be faced with an insoluble problem in discarding when as a matter of fact the solution was so simple that it actually escaped his notice.

North's raise to three no trump with only nine points was acceptable, inasmuch as he held an establishable five-card suit. West opened the six of hearts, and East's jack went to declarer's king. Declarer immediately went to work on the club suit, leading a little one to the king. On the return of the suit, East was somewhat embarrassed for a discard. Inasmuch as he was desirous of having his partner continue hearts, he was anxious to throw a discouraging card in one of the other suits. Unfortunately, however, his cards in both spades and diamonds were of such size that they could not very readily be interpreted as discouraging. East finally chose the seven of spades on the very thin ground that the seven of spades was smaller than the eight of diamonds. Declarer ducked the trick into West. It was pointless, he considered, to cash his eight top card tricks, for then the defense would be left with no problem at all. Declarer saw a remote chance. If East, rather than West, held the queen of hearts, West, not knowing the location of the queen, might be reluctant to continue the suit.

Upon winning the club trick, West followed exactly that line of reasoning. If declarer held the heart queen, it was important to get partner into the lead to come through. So, mindful of partner's seven of spades, he shifted to that suit, and declarer ran for cover. Obviously East's discard of the eight of diamonds would have produced a similar result.

In the post-mortem analysis, East was considered to have been a victim of circumstances. Actually, however, he had failed to display resourcefulness. By applying the "rule of eleven," East should have realized that declarer had no high heart left and that West therefore had remaining the ace, ten and seven. Subtracting the card led (six of hearts) from eleven leaves five, which represents the number of hearts higher than the six that are distributed around the table;

Tests Prove New Formula Stops Athlete's Foot

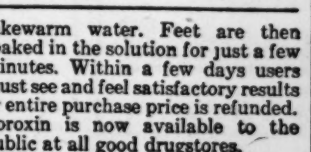

35 Out Of 36 Cases Cleared of Raw Itching Irritation In One Week or less.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Good news for anyone tormented by the raw, itching irritation of athlete's foot was announced here with the release for public sale of a remarkable new medical formula called Foroxin.

As a result of tests on patients at one of the country's leading hospitals, it has been proven that Foroxin kills on contact all five types of fungi that cause athlete's foot. Of 36 patients treated, 35 cases were completely cleared in an average of four days. In addition, Foroxin has been proven entirely safe for use even on the most tender skin, will not cause irritation.

Unlike old-fashioned methods of treatment, Foroxin's fungicidal action penetrates deep into cracks and crevices no salve or powder can reach, bringing fast soothing relief from soreness, itching, and irritation of peeling, cracking, fungus-infected feet. Foroxin is easy to use. Contents of one vial is emptied into a basin of lukewarm water. Feet are then soaked in the solution for just a few minutes. Within a few days users must see and feel satisfactory results or entire purchase price is refunded. Foroxin is now available to the public at all good drugstores.

Solution to Yesterday's Puzzle

YOUR MIND'S MIRROR

By JOSEPH WHITNEY

Can you "wish" for anxiety?

Answer: Yes, it is quite common and most of us occasionally indulge in this seeming paradox. Children are particularly adept in producing anxiety; riding on hair-raising roller coasters, promoting ghost stories, shooting fire-crackers, etc. Adults seek anxiety situations in mystery stories, prize-fights, even military maneuvers. The most popular form of artificially created anxiety is gambling, where anxious tension builds up with the fall of every card.

Are Most Married Couples Soon Disillusioned?

Answer: No, but quite a few married couples think they are. Their disillusionment is not with marriage itself, but is a result of self-deception before marriage when they were so preoccupied with the idea of love and romance that they failed to appraise the basic character traits of their marriage partner. Those traits remain the same after marriage, but may appear quite different to a young couple who dreamed that marriage would be a never-ending honeymoon.

Will Job Efficiency Guarantee Success?

Answer: No, although ability to do your job well is one of the factors in doing it successfully. Actually, most employees who lose their jobs, or who continually change from one job to another, do so because of their inability to "get along" with superiors and co-workers. In a recent study involving 4,000 industrial dismissals (V. V. Anderson, Contribution of Mental Hygiene to Industry) 62 per cent were dismissed for social rather than technical incompetence.

The Pastor's Study Jewish Children Being Mistreated?

By ROBERT B. GIFFEN

DEAR MR. GIFFEN: We have run into a problem in school. One teacher is strongly prejudiced against Jewish children. Is it the responsibility of my daughter to report it to the principal?—O. (A Protestant mother.)

DEAR MRS. O.: Prejudice is a most difficult thing to prove. If your daughter goes to the principal, she will have to give incontrovertible witness to either words or actions which, in themselves, prove that this teacher is acting in a manner unbecoming to her place in a democracy. If she fails, (and it is hazardous for a student to go up against a teacher), she may find that she has been hurt without helping the situation.

If you are sure that the matter is real, and that it is serious, I suggest that you ask the teacher to come to see you, or that you talk with her in complete privacy. There is no question about the policies of the school administration under which she works. I believe that you will find that at least a part of the problem lies in misunderstanding. Your concern—as a Protestant—that Jewish children should feel safe and secure in being Jewish in your school will be the best possible influence upon this teacher. But, I beseech you, do not prejudice the situation before you have this talk. Children are always finding horrible characteristics in their teachers!

Atlantans Win Awards For Services in Korea

By BOB WILLIMON

Two Atlanta servicemen were recently awarded Air Medals for service in Korea. Navy Ensign Edward R. Holladay, husband of the former Miss Eva Reid, 933 Buckingham Cir., NW, received the medal in a recent ceremony aboard the carrier USS Boxer. The citation read in part: "For meritorious achievements while flying in a fighter-bomber aircraft over enemy North Korea."

Similarly cited was Second Lt. Marion C. Davis, husband of the former Dorothy Loden, 134 Wyman St., SE. Piloting an F-84 Thunderjet, Lt. Davis flew 30 combat missions, and received the Air Medal as a result of meritorious achievement while participating in aerial flight."

Ensign Holladay is the son of T. N. Holladay of Miami, Fla.; and Lt. Davis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Marion A. Davis, 2929 Pharr Rd., NE.

Airman 1-c Walter H. Butler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Butler, Starrville, was recently awarded the Commendation Ribbon "for exceptionally meritorious service while serving as a Combat Casualty Reporter" for the 51st Fighter Interceptor Wing in Korea.

Airman Butler, a 1951 graduate of Roosevelt High School, also holds the Korean Service ribbon with two battle stars, the United Nations ribbon, and the National Defense ribbon. The new award was made at Fifth Air Force Base, Korea.

Marine 2nd Lt. Frank H. Wright, son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Wright of Douglasville, recently received his Naval aviator wings in ceremonies at the Pensacola Naval Air Station. His parents were in attendance and his mother pinned on his wings. Lt. Wright attended Young Harris College prior to entering the Marine Corps.

Annapolis Midshipman Harry F. Campbell Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Campbell, 2535 Acorn Ave., NE, has completed a three-week indoctrination cruise from Norfolk to Halifax, Nova Scotia, aboard the aircraft carrier USS Valley Forge. Midshipman Campbell joined the "future admirals" to observe all phases of the ship's operation, and each made a familiarization flight in a Grumman "Avenger" torpedo bomber.

Chief Commissaryman James L. Hudgins, USN, son of Mrs. James Hudgins, 207 Hurt St., NE, has received the Fleet President's pin aboard the USS Libra. The pin—a gold ship's helm encircling a blue triangle with the engraved words "loyalty, protection, service"—was awarded by the Association's Atlanta Branch 89 for serving as president in 1952 while he was stationed in Atlanta on recruiting duty. Hudgins, a submariner, was aboard the US Submarine Gudgeon when it became the first undersea craft in

Lack of Location Delays Park for Negroes in Northeast

By CLAUDE GEORGE SR.

For lack of an available location, the $64,000 set aside to build a park for Negroes in the northeast section still is pending. George I. Simons, general manager of the City Parks Department, told Atlanta members of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Mayor Hartsfield and parks officials attending the monthly meeting of the Atlanta NAACP told members that a site near Auburn Ave. and Butler St., once under consideration, had been taken into the East connection of the expressway.

Simons said the parks department also was having trouble finding a site for a Negro golf course. He said, however, that the three existing Negro parks, Anderson, Pittman and Washington, will be improved. Mayor Hartsfield expressed confidence that Moseley Park will be turned over to Negroes in the near future.

Miss Virginia Carmichael told the group that 15 supervised playgrounds and five community centers now are operated for Negroes in Atlanta.

NAACP members at the meeting voted their disapproval of Negro use of the side entrance to the Terminal Station and of the dual facilities for tax services at the Fulton County Courthouse.

Nobody hangs dishes on a washline. But if you did, you'd see your week's dishes are a bigger job than your weekly laundry. A job this big deserves a special product designed for dishwashing—not a strong powder intended for getting dirt out of clothes. And your hands deserve it, too.

with this can here to help you, why "laundry" your dishes?

Packed in a can as it should be—with a dripless spout

Won't break like a bottle. Won't get soggy or take up room like a box. And the dripless spout keeps the liquid from dripping down the side of the can.

Washing powders are great for laundering dirty clothes but dishes aren't clothes. This new Lux Liquid Detergent is especially designed for dishwashing. One canful of this new Lux Liquid Detergent will wash more dishes than several boxes of the most popular laundry powder. And... Lux Liquid Detergent is almost as mild on your hands as Lux Toilet Soap.

JUDGING from the way this new Lux Liquid Detergent is selling, an awful lot of women have stopped "laundrying" their dishes with laundry powder. How about you?

This can in your kitchen is the next best thing to a dishwashing machine.

Lux Liquid Detergent literally soaks dishes clean. Gets between the clinging grease and the dish. Dissolves the grease. For fast, efficient dishwashing—with or without wiping—no powder can touch it.

Lux Liquid is thrifter for dishwashing than the most popular laundry powder.

A few drops wash a whole dishpan-full of dishes. A couple of trials will show you how little you have to use.

But all this wouldn't mean much if Lux Liquid Detergent weren't mild. Well, Lux makes it, so it's got to be mild. It's milder than any other leading detergent. Milder than some soaps. In fact, almost as mild as Lux Toilet Soap. Two other little things you'll like: it smells good—and it's already dissolved.

There's a money-back Lever Brothers guarantee, of course, but we honestly believe you'll be pleased.

Get Double the Stocking Wear with Lux Flakes care

95% of all stocking manufacturers recommend Lux Flakes. Gentle Lux care literally can give you double the stocking wear. If you want to go to the trouble, you can prove to yourself how gentle Lux Flakes care saves stockings. Get two new identical pairs. Go ahead and wash one pair with any of those strong washday products. Wash the other pair the Lux way—in pure, gentle Lux Flakes. Keep this up a few weeks. You'll see Lux Flakes care does make a difference.

Lux care keeps nylon threads strong as new, washing after washing. And it's wonderfully mild to your hands.
